Chapter One
The Northern Ireland Story

The Irish FA was founded on 18 November 1880 at the Queen's Hotel, Belfast, becoming the fourth oldest governing body in the world, behind the three other home associations. This inaugural meeting was at the behest of the Cliftonville club – the oldest in Ireland – and clubs in Belfast and District created a unifying constitution and set of rules, adhering to those laid down by the Scottish FA some seven years earlier in 1873. The aims of this embryonic organisation were to promote, foster and develop the game of football throughout the whole of Ireland.

Football itself first came to Ireland a couple of years earlier when Scottish clubs Queen's Park and the Caledonians staged an exhibition match at the Ulster Cricket Ground, Ballynafeigh after John M McAlery, first secretary of the new association, had discovered the game whilst on honeymoon in Edinburgh. The Irish FA's first international match was against England at the Knock Ground, Bloomfield in East Belfast in 1882. Ireland lost 13-0 but the gate receipts amounted to £9 19s 7d. Captain of the Irish side that day was McAlery, who was distraught and sat in the dressing-room with tears running down his cheeks! A week later, and Ireland lost 7-1 to Wales at Wrexham with Distillery's Johnston netting his country's first goal in the international arena.

Qualification for internationals was not nearly so strict as it is today. If players were born in Ireland or had seven years residence, they could wear the St Patrick blue jersey – the nation's first colours. It changed to green against England on 17 October 1931 to avoid a clash with Scotland's dark blue. Professionalism became a debating point at the start of the 1885-86 season, with Scotland inviting the Irish FA delegation to a conference at Liverpool, but as England decided not to attend, there was no Irish representative there either. Though professionalism became legalised in England and Scotland that year, the Irish FA remained quite adamant that 'only amateurs should play in international matches'.

DID YOU KNOW?
The first brothers to score goals for Ireland were Joe Sherrard v Wales (12 March 1887) and Willie Sherrard v Wales (16 March 1895).

In March 1887, five years after their first-ever international match and some very heavy defeats, Ireland won their first-ever game when they beat Wales 4-1 at Oldpark Avenue in Belfast. In February 1899 Ireland again conceded 13 goals against England, this time at Sunderland's Roker Park. It was the first-ever international staged at that famous ground and on returning to Belfast, the Irish team found their bags had been chalk-marked with a huge '13' by disgruntled fans on the cross-channel ferry!

International football remained insular, played in the confines of the British Isles and, as a result, England, Scotland and Wales and of course Ireland had an inflated opinion of their skills compared with the European nations.

In February 1902 Ireland beat Wales 3-0 at Cardiff Arms Park with Andrew Gara of Preston North End netting all three goals. This was not the first international hat-trick scored by an Irishman – that honour went to Ollie Stansfield, who hit three in a 7-2 defeat of Wales in Belfast in 1891.

Ireland won two international in 1903 against Wales and Scotland but had to wait until February 1913 for their first success against England – a 2-1 win at Windsor Park with Billy Gillespie scoring both goals.

Ireland's playing fortunes had been mixed since those humiliating early defeats. There were the odd occasions when the side were victorious but in the main they were the underdogs. However, in 1913-14, Ireland won the Home International Championship outright, beating Wales 2-1 and England 3-0 but just missed out on the Triple Crown as a result of a 1-1 draw with Scotland. A blend had been found in the side and there were a number of experienced players now representing their country. Billy Gillespie scored in the wins over Wales and England, while Billy Lacey netted the other two goals in the defeat of England at Ayresome Park. In the game against Scotland, Fred McKee was injured just before half-time, forcing Billy Lacey to move into goal. The Irish did well to earn a point and thus win the Championship during a campaign in which each of the original teams chosen had been drastically altered by injuries and unavailability.

The final table read:

	P	W	D	L	F	A	Pts
Ireland	3	2	1	0	6	2	5
Scotland	3	1	2	0	2	4	4
England	3	1	0	2	3	6	2
Wales	2	0	1	2	1	4	1

Upon the partition of Ireland in 1921, the FAIFS (now the FAI) was set up to regulate the game in the Irish Free State (now the Republic of Ireland). Those behind the FAIFS believed that soccer should be regulated by a federation based in Ireland's capital, Dublin. The IFA's supporters argued that the federation should be based where the game was mainly played – Ulster and its principal city Belfast. Both federations claimed to represent the whole of the island, both competed as Ireland and both picked players from the two rival leagues – which also split at this time.

On 1 February 1930, Ireland recorded their biggest-ever win in international football when they defeated Wales 7-0 at Celtic Park. Joe Bambrick netted six of his side's goals – a record which not surprisingly still stands, while Andy McCluggage scored the other goal from a penalty. The following year, the national side changed their shirt colour from blue to green. The official reason at the time was that, due to Scotland's navy strip, they were forced to wear white shirts in games against them. Back then, it would have represented one-third of their games. Probably as influential – though never quoted as an official reason – was the off-the-field contest between the IFA and the Free State to be recognised as the 'true' national side of Ireland. Whereas the IFA blue shirt had an old-style Celtic cross badge with a harp in the middle, the Free State badge was of shamrocks. The IFA changed their badge to shamrocks in the mid 1930s.

When Ireland entertained Scotland at Windsor Park in October 1934, an overhead cable fault at Shaftesbury Square led to a break down in the tram service. This meant thousands of fans streamed in late into Windsor Park. Scotland led 1-0 at half-time but when the second-half started, Ireland resumed without goalkeeper Elisha Scott. McMillan went in goal and performed heroics as the 10-men team won 2-1 with two late goals from Martin and Coulter.

In 1948 the Irish FA joined FIFA in order to compete in the World Cup. Northern Ireland had the honour of hosting the first 'British' World Cup qualifier when Scotland visited Windsor Park in October 1949. The Scots raced into a three-goal half-time lead and though Sammy Smyth scored twice after the break, the visitors ran out comfortable winners 8-2. Ireland then played England at Maine Road but as in the Scotland game, it was over as a contest by half-time – England eventually winning 9-2. The Irish secured their first World Cup point with a goalless draw against Wales at Wrexham's Racecourse Ground. This match was the last one that players born in the Republic of Ireland played for Ireland.

As with the 1950 qualifiers, FIFA elected to use the 1953-54 British Championships as qualification for the finals in Switzerland. Following defeats by Scotland and England, Ireland then recorded their first-ever World Cup qualifying when Peter McParland scored both his side's goals in a 2-1 defeat of Wales.

In the summer of 1954 FIFA ordered the Irish FA to name their international team Northern Ireland. FIFA also ordered the Football Association of Ireland to name their international team the Republic of Ireland.

When Northern Ireland were paired with Italy and Portugal in the qualifiers for the 1958 World Cup in Sweden, few fans held out much hope of this campaign being any different than the previous two. But of course, we now know that what followed was the zenith of Irish FA history. Northern Ireland began their World Cup campaign in January 1957 against Portugal in Lisbon, a match that kicked off at 10.30pm. It was a game that began one day and finished the next! In what was a physical encounter, a goal from Billy Bingham earned the Irish a point. Most fans thought it was a flash in the pan, few thinking it would lead to an era of glory. Those views were reinforced when over three months later, Italy beat Northern Ireland 1-0 and qualification seemed a long way off. However, eyebrows were raised just six days later when Northern Ireland defeated Portugal 3-0 with goals from Simpson, McIlroy and Casey. Later that month, the Portuguese beat the Italians by a similar margin. Italian qualification was now not a foregone conclusion, and it became even more worrying for them when Northern Ireland beat England 3-2 at Wembley.

This was a great boost to Northern Ireland's morale and so when they were due to meet Italy at Windsor Park on 4 December 1957, they needed a win, their opponents a draw. But what happened next has gone down in footballing folklore the world over. Hungarian referee Istvan Zolt, manager of the Budapest Opera House was appointed to officiate the game but he was fogbound at London Airport. However, Irish FA secretary Billy Drennan had Arthur Ellis, then rated the world's No.1 referee standing by to catch a train for Stranraer and the ferry to Larne.

No agreement could be reached, with the Italians insisting that the weather would improve sufficiently for Zolt to arrive the next day. But it didn't and by then it was too late for Ellis to make the journey across the Irish Sea. A local referee was also ruled out so it was decided to play the game as a friendly and arrange the World Cup tie for the following month. The friendly, in which tackles went in thick and fast, ended all-square at 2-2 but before the rematch, the Italians defeated Portugal to top the group. Northern Ireland's players knew nothing other than a win would suffice and thanks to goals from Jimmy Mclroy and Wilbur Cush, a win by 2-1 is just what they got.

Now, for the first time in the history of the Irish FA, Northern Ireland had reached the World Cup Finals. This is how the group finished:

	P	W	D	L	F	A	Pts
NORTHERN IRELAND	4	2	1	1	6	3	5
Italy	4	2	0	2	5	5	4
Portugal	4	1	1	2	4	7	3

However, in the months after qualifying for the finals and the finals themselves, Northern Ireland only played one international match, that a draw with fellow qualifiers Wales.

When the draw was made for the 1958 Finals, Northern Ireland found themselves paired with reigning champions West Germany as the well as the much-fancied Czechoslovakia and Argentina. However, Northern Ireland's achievement in reaching the finals was tinged with controversy. Two of Ireland's matches in Sweden were arranged for Sundays and under the articles of the Irish FA, these were banned, thus casting doubt on the nation's participation in the tournament. A compromise was reached with the team permitted to play on the Sabbath and the rule remained unaltered: Sunday football was permitted outside Northern Ireland.

With Jackie Blanchflower still recovering from the Munich air disaster, it meant that Northern Ireland only took 17 players and this was reduced to 16 before a ball was kicked when Rangers' Billy Simpson was injured in the very first training session.

The opening match against Czechoslovakia was played at Halmstad – the first-ever occasion when an Irish FA XI had played on a Sunday. To the surprise of every one present, Northern Ireland triumphed 1-0 with Wilbur Cush getting the all-important goal. Northern Ireland's next opponents at the same venue three days later were Argentina, who were stunned just three minutes into the game when Peter McParland put the Irish ahead. However, the South American side hit back to win 3-1. Then it was on to Malmo for yet another Sunday match, this time against the current world champions West Germany. This match has gone down in both Irish and German sporting folklore, for with Harry Gregg in outstanding form and two goals from Peter McParland, Northern Ireland led 2-1 with just seven minutes to play. Just as the shock of the tournament was about to materialise, up popped a young Uwe Seeler to net the equaliser. With Czechoslovakia having surprisingly beaten Argentina 6-1, they finished equal on points with Northern Ireland, thus necessitating a play-off for a place in the quarter-finals.

The group table read:

	P	W	D	L	F	A	Pts
West Germany	3	1	2	0	7	4	4
Czechoslovakia	3	1	1	1	8	4	3
NORTHERN IRELAND	3	1	1	1	4	5	3
Argentina	3	1	0	2	5	10	2

Following their defeat of the Argentinians, Czechoslovakia were expected to exact their revenge on Northern Ireland for that opening defeat and progress to the quarter-finals where France lay in wait. There followed another victory for the Irish, albeit after extra-time with Peter McParland scoring twice in a 2-1 scoreline. Northern Ireland had reached the last eight of the World Cup but the preparation for the game against France – just two days after the play-off with Czechoslovakia – was not helped by an ever-growing injury list and the 10-hour journey across Sweden to Norrkoping. Unfortunately, the meeting with the French, who had players of the calibre of Raymond Kopa and Just Fontaine in their ranks, proved beyond Northern Ireland and they crashed out of the competition 4-0. It was a sad end to the fairytale story that had captured the imagination of the football world.

Within six months of the completion of the World Cup Finals, a future Northern Ireland international, Johnny Crossan, who was playing for Coleraine, was found guilty by the Irish League Management of being paid as an amateur and asking for more than the £750 permitted from a transfer fee – he was banned for life from British football! He had started out with Derry City where his ability on the ball attracted attention from a host of English clubs but after his relationship with Derry City deteriorated, in stepped Coleraine to sign him as an amateur. He later signed for Peter Doherty's Bristol City but the registration was not accepted by the Football League, thus forcing the Irish authorities to act in the way they did. Appeals to the Irish FA were rejected and Crossan left to play his football on the continent, initially with Sparta Rotterdam. In November 1959, Crossan astonishingly found himself selected to play for Northern Ireland against England – a selection frowned upon by both the Football League and the Irish FA. Though he won 23 caps, he didn't appear again until 1962 but after a spell with Standard Liège, the ban was finally lifted and he went on to join Sunderland, whom he helped win promotion to the top flight.

The qualifiers for the 1962 World Cup Finals in Chile saw Northern Ireland placed in the same group as their old adversaries from the previous finals, West Germany, and Greece. The opening game saw Billy McAdams net a magnificent hat-trick for Ireland in front of a 40,000 strong Windsor Park crowd but the visiting Germans still triumphed 4-3. The Germans then virtually sealed qualification with a 3-0 win over Greece in Athens. Though the Irish were not mathematically eliminated, they did need to win themselves in Greece to stand any chance of qualification but they went down 2-1. A week later, a similar scoreline saw Northern Ireland lose to the Germans in Berlin before pride was restored in the final group game, when Jimmy McLaughlin netted both goals in a 2-0 home win over Greece.

Northern Ireland first entered the European Championships in 1964. Though they progressed to the second round with 2-0 victories both home and away against Poland, the team went out to Spain 2-1 on aggregate – this after a Willie Irvine goal had given them a 1-1 draw in the first leg in Bilbao!

With the 1966 World Cup Finals taking place in England, hopes were high that Northern Ireland would qualify for the tournament. The expectations were raised even further when the Irish were drawn in the same group as Holland, Switzerland and Albania. A Johnny Crossan penalty gave Ireland the points in the opening game against Switzerland in Belfast but when the sides met again a month later in Lausanne, the Swiss emerged as 2-1 winners. On St Patrick's Day 1965, goals from Crossan and Neill helped Ireland beat Holland 2-1 whilst the return in Rotterdam a few weeks later saw the sides play out a goalless draw. With Holland and Switzerland set to meet, Ireland's hopes were that the two sides would cancel each other out, allowing Northern Ireland to nip in and head the group with two victories over a currently pointless Albania. In the home game against the Albanians, a Johnny Crossan hat-trick and a fine individual goal from George Best, helped Northern Ireland to a 4-1 win. All was going to plan as the Dutch and the Swiss cancelled each other out in Amsterdam. This left Northern Ireland needing the formality of a win in Tirana and so make plans for crossing the Irish Sea. However, a 1-1 draw was all that the team could manage and with the Swiss beating the Dutch in Bern, the point gained in Albania proved to be insufficient.

After a disappointing 1968 European Championships in which Northern Ireland finished rooted to the bottom of their group, little was expected of the national side when the 1970 World Cup saw them drawn alongside Turkey and the USSR. However, qualification for the finals in Mexico got off to the most amazing start when following a 4-1 home win over Turkey, the boys in green won the return in Ankara 3-0. There followed a nine-month lay-off before Northern Ireland's next group match at home to the USSR. Despite having most of the play, the game ended goalless – it proved to be the last World Cup tie to be played on home soil for nigh on eight years! The USSR then beat Turkey to leave the Irish needing a point from their visit to Moscow to qualify for the finals, whilst the home side, who had a game in hand, needed to win to draw level on points with Northern Ireland. Despite some heroics from the Irish defence, goals from Nodija and Bishovet gave the home side a 2-0 victory.

Northern Ireland were unfortunate to be drawn against the USSR and Spain in the 1972 European Championships and though they suffered defeats in the away games, did manage draws in the home fixtures, although the meeting with Spain was played at Hull because of the political unrest. Also in Northern Ireland's group were Cyprus and in the 5-0 win in Belfast, not only did George Best score a hat-trick but Distillery's Peter Watson's international career became the shortest ever: he won his only cap in this match after coming on as an 88th minute substitute. In May 1972, Northern Ireland's player-manager Terry Neill scored the only goal of the game as his side beat England at Wembley.

The Irish were drawn alongside Bulgaria, Portugal and whipping boys Cyprus in the 1974 World Cup qualifiers but made the most disastrous of starts. After losing 3-0 in Bulgaria, Northern Ireland unbelievably went down 1-0 in Cyprus before securing their first point with a 1-1 home draw against Portugal. This was the start of a four-game unbeaten run in the group as Cyprus were beaten 3-0 at Fulham's Craven Cottage ground and Bulgaria held to a goalless draw in Sheffield before Ireland drew 1-1 with Portugal in Lisbon.

Northern Ireland finished runners-up to Yugoslavia in the qualifying group for the 1976 European Championships with Bryan Hamilton scoring the only goal of the game against the eventual group champions. This came after a 2-0 success in Sweden and hopes were high that at last Northern Ireland would qualify for the final stages. But despite a resounding victory over Norway, who had beaten the Irish in the group's opening game, Northern Ireland went down to defeat at home to Sweden and in Yugoslavia.

Goals from Chris McGrath and Derek Spence helped Northern Ireland draw 2-2 against 1978 World Cup qualifying group favourites Holland in Rotterdam, but defeats in Belgium and Iceland left the Irish needing to win all their three home games to stand a chance of qualification. Unfortunately, sandwiched in-between victories over Iceland and Belgium, a match in which Gerry Armstrong scored twice, the Dutch won 1-0 to qualify for the finals in Argentina. They went on to reach the World Cup Final where they lost 3-1 to the host side.

Northern Ireland gave a much better showing in the 1980 European Championships, this in spite of being drawn in the same group as England, the Republic of Ireland, Bulgaria and Denmark. After a goalless draw in Dublin, Northern Ireland beat Denmark at home and Bulgaria away before losing 4-0 to England at Wembley. Goals from Chris Nicholl and Armstrong helped to complete the double over Bulgaria but there followed heavy defeats against Denmark (0-4) and England (1-5) before a Gerry Armstrong goal gave them both points in the home game against the Republic. Northern Ireland finished runners-up in the group, six points behind leaders England.

In February 1980 Billy Bingham had been appointed Northern Ireland manager. Three months later the national side won the Home International Championship outright for only the second time in their history.

For the 1982 World Cup Finals in Spain, Northern Ireland had been drawn against Scotland, Portugal, Sweden and Israel. Despite an uninspiring goalless draw against Israel in Tel Aviv just weeks after Bingham's appointment, there followed victories at Windsor Park over both Sweden and Portugal whilst the home and away games against Scotland produced draws.

However, after they had gone down to single goal defeats in the return matches with the Swedes and the Portuguese, Northern Ireland's qualification for the finals was under great threat. However, after Israel had unbelievably beaten Portugal 4-1, Northern Ireland needed just a point from their home game against Israel to qualify for their second World Cup Finals. As it transpired, a Gerry Armstrong goal clinched both points in an emotional night at Windsor Park and Northern Ireland qualified for the finals as runners-up behind Group 6 winners Scotland.

Come the summer, Northern Ireland were paired with Yugoslavia, Honduras and the hosts, Spain. Yugoslavia had to be content with a goalless draw against the admirable Northern Ireland team fielding 17-year-old Norman Whiteside but then the youngster's team had to be satisfied with a point against the so-called minnows of the group, Honduras. Northern Ireland had taken an early lead through Gerry Armstrong and threatened to take them apart. They held on, restricting the Irish to the one goal and managed an equaliser on the hour mark. The score remained 1-1. In their final game, Northern Ireland were really up against it, requiring at least a 1-1 draw against Spain in the last Group 5 game. In the sweltering Luis Casanova stadium in Valencia, Northern Ireland played perhaps their most outstanding World Cup game ever. They overcame all the odds - a weak referee, the heat, the hostile crowd, the cynical Spanish tackling – to hold on to a 0-0 half-time score. Gerry Armstrong put them ahead two minutes into the second-half but 12 minutes later, they were staring disaster in the face when Mal Donaghy was sent-off for a seemingly innocuous shove. The Northern Ireland side, with Pat Jennings outstanding, showed their determination by refusing to relinquish their lead and so qualified for the next round as top of their group!

The doughty fighters of Northern Ireland then held Austria to a 2-2 draw in the next game and met France requiring a victory to progress to the last four of the competition. The searing temperatures in Madrid's Calderon stadium left the Irish struggling and Platini, fit again after injury, directed a steady flow of French attacks on the wilting Irishmen. With a little over a quarter-of-an-hour to go, the French were 3-0 up but a Gerry Armstrong goal was not enough to revive the Irish who went out 4-1, so ending their wonderfully brave challenge.

Northern Ireland were undoubtedly the surprise packet of the 1984 European Championship qualifying stages. Their five-team group consisting of West Germany, Austria, Turkey and Albania was supposed to be a pushover for the West Germans, the World Cup runners-up and reigning European Champions. But Northern Ireland inflicted two 1-0 victories, home and away, upon West Germany to throw the group wide open. It went down to the wire with the Germans needing to beat Albania at home in their last game to qualify, which they did with only 10 minutes to spare and got through only on goal difference from Northern Ireland.

In the summer of 1984 Northern Ireland achieved a third outright win the Home International Championships. This was the final year of the competition and the trophy is now retained at the Irish FA headquarters, Windsor Avenue, Belfast.

Following these excellent performances in the European Championship and the Home Internationals, Northern Ireland hoped to be among the qualification front-runners for the 1986 World Cup Finals in Mexico. Finland, who along with England, Romania and Turkey, made up the rest of Group 3, were Northern Ireland's first opponents. Yet against a side that hadn't won any of its 22 previous internationals, Northern Ireland crashed to a 1-0 defeat! There followed two successive home victories over Romania and Finland. The next visitors to Windsor Park were England, a game that looked to be heading for a goalless draw until Mark Hateley's late strike won the points for Bobby Robson's side. Billy Bingham's side then produced two wins and a draw from their next three qualifiers, leaving them needing a point from their final match against England. A backs-to-the-wall performance from the Irish back four plus an outstanding display of goalkeeping by Pat Jennings saw the Irish hold out for a memorable goalless draw and so secure the point they so desperately required.

When the draw for the finals in Mexico was made, Northern Ireland again found themselves facing Spain, whilst other group members were Algeria and three-times world champions, Brazil. Northern Ireland's first match against Algeria was a hard, bad-tempered affair in which they failed to convert a number of chances after Norman Whiteside had scored from a free-kick in the fifth minute. In the second-half, Algeria equalised and were then content to play out a 1-1 draw as the Irish, wilting in the heat, dropped a vital point. Having lost to Northern Ireland in the 1982 World Cup, Spain were keen to exact revenge against them this time, and took the lead through Butragueno after only one minute! Salinas scored a second after 18 minutes and although Northern Ireland managed to pull a goal back just after half-time – after a farcical sliced clearance by Zubizaretta had been headed to Clarke – Spain deserved their 2-1 victory.

Northern Ireland were outclassed in the last group game against Brazil, who had already qualified: despite a sterling performance by Pat Jennings (on his 41st birthday), they went down 3-0, so failing to reach the next stage.

Following a disappointing 1988 European Championships, when Northern Ireland's solitary victory was a 1-0 defeat of bottom-of-the-table Turkey in their last qualifying game, the Irish also failed to light up the following World Cup campaign, though they did win their first group match against Malta. Despite a draw against the Republic of Ireland, who qualified for Italia '90, Northern Ireland's only other success came in the return fixture against Malta.

The 1992 European Championship qualifiers saw Northern Ireland record their biggest-ever away win international football when Colin Clarke netted a hat-trick in a 5-0 win against the Faroe Islands, a match played in Landskrona, Sweden. Unfortunately, the Irish were outplayed by both Yugoslavia and Denmark, with the former qualifying for the finals as group winners.

The formidable task confronting Northern Ireland in qualifying for the 1994 World Cup Finals in the United States was again underlined when they only drew 2-2 with Lithuania, this after they had led the Windsor Park encounter 2-0. A valuable point was dropped and manager Bingham's hopes of accumulating a maximum eight points from his side's first four home games were dashed. The results in the remainder of the campaign were mixed but manager Bingham had produced a squad that revealed much potential. They held the Republic of Ireland to a 1-1 draw in a tension-filled match at Windsor Park, when a Jimmy Quinn goal almost ended Jack Charlton's hopes of making it to the United States. Alan McLaughlin's equaliser ten minutes from time saved the day.

Bryan Hamilton was nominated as Northern Ireland's first full-time manager to replace Billy Bingham who retired after 15 years' distinguished service and after a 2-0 win over Romania in Belfast, a 4-1 defeat of Liechtenstein in the opening European Championship Group 6 game followed. There were some excellent results in the 1996 European Championships, with wins against Austria in Vienna and Latvia in Riga whilst sandwiched in between was a 1-1 draw with the Republic of Ireland in Dublin. Then came a disastrous 2-0 defeat by Canada before a 2-1 humiliation by Latvia at Windsor Park. That scoreline proved to be a catastrophe, especially in view of the Republic being held to a scoreless draw in Liechtenstein and then losing 2-1 to Austria at Lansdowne Road. Three points against Latvia would have put Northern Ireland back into qualification for the Euro finals to be held in England. However, Hamilton's side rallied and ended the group with a stunning 5-3 home win over Austria.

Despite this, the next World Cup qualifying campaign was a complete let down, with the national side's worst moment coming in the neutral city of Zurich when Northern Ireland lost 1-0 to Albania! Prior to that there had been commendable draws with European champions Germany in Nuremberg and Portugal in Belfast, along with a 3-0 friendly win over Belgium. Also there was a scoreless draw against Thailand in the heat and humidity of Bangkok. With many of the established players unavailable, the performances of the youngsters underlined the depth in talent at Northern Ireland's disposal. However, with only seven points out of a possible 30, the national side slumped to 92nd in the FIFA world rankings. This crisis situation led to the termination of Bryan Hamilton's contract, though the Irish FA International Committee were 'conscious of the valuable public relations work carried out by the manager as an adjunct to his main duties and responsibilities'.

His replacement was Lawrie McMenemy, former assistant to England manager Graham Taylor, with Joe Jordan, ex-Manchester United and AC Milan striker and Pat Jennings as the goalkeeping coach. What was labelled as 'The Dream management Team' had an excellent start with victories over Slovakia and Switzerland as they laid the basis for the European Championship. However, results in competitive matches were still disappointing, though the 1-0 win over the Republic of Ireland in a charity match for the Omagh Bomb Disaster Fund – the team missing 10 regulars – was a major morale boost. Elimination from the European Championship qualifiers, following one win in eight matches, heralded the departure of McMenemy and his management team, who declined to take up an extension option on their contract.

World Cup hero Sammy McIlroy who had been with Macclesfield took over, assisted by Jim Harvey who was manager of non-League Morecambe. McIlroy had an initial success against Luxembourg and Malta but there soon followed a 1-0 defeat by Hungary at Windsor Park. Bad luck, conceding late goals, elementary defensive blunders, injuries and suspensions were to beset McIlroy's team in the months ahead. For instance, he was without 10 regulars for the World Cup qualifying match against the Czech Republic in Prague, yet his makeshift team held the home side to 1-1, until the final two minutes when the Czechs struck twice! In Bulgaria, they lost 4-3, the highest number of away goals scored for a number of years but bad defending ruined the outcome.

The 4-0 defeat by Norway in a friendly international at Windsor Park in February 2001 proved disastrous in more ways than one. Celtic midfielder Neil Lennon was booed by a small number of fans every time he touched the ball – their protest at affiliation with the Parkhead club following his transfer from Leicester City. The action of the minority was totally condemned by the entire Northern Ireland sporting public and the Irish FA, who immediately drew up a Code of Conduct which operates now at all games.

Throughout his tenure as Northern Ireland manager, Sammy McIlroy, who brought pride and passion to the squad, reminiscent of the halcyon World Cup days of Sweden 1958, Spain '82 and Mexico '86, was never able to parade his original selections in any game due to withdrawals and premature retirement from players such as Lennon, Horlock and Magilton. There was depression and drama with the national team. It went 1,298 minutes and 15 matches without scoring a goal until Preston North End striker David Healy ended the drought against Norway and went on to establish a new all-time Northern Ireland scoring record of 14 – one more than that which existed for years and was held by Colin Clarke and Billy Gillespie.

Sammy McIlroy resigned as manager 24 hours after the final 2004 European Championship qualifier against Greece in Athens to join Stockport County. Jimmy Nicholl, Dunfermline Athletic's assistant-coach seemed a certainty to succeed him but the job went to Lawrie Sanchez, Wimbledon's FA Cup Final hero, who played three times for Northern Ireland under Billy Bingham.

Sanchez brought a new dimension to the management of the national side, getting the team on a winning streak – five matches undefeated. This lifted morale and at last Northern Ireland fans found themselves with a feel-good factor. There were some good wins and promising performances in friendlies and on the Caribbean tour. This resulted in an improvement in attendances and phenomenal support both home and abroad.

After a disappointing start to the 2006 World Cup qualifiers, Northern Ireland beat Azerbaijan 2-0 before a David Healy goal brought a never-to-be-forgotten 1-0 victory over England. Healy's goal lifted the morale of the entire country – a goal which is now a piece of Irish football history. It pushed Sanchez's team into a comparatively respectable FIFA ranking after years of hovering in the doldrums along with other fellow strugglers. Northern Ireland finished fourth in the World Cup Group 6 qualifying series but with a little more luck could have got third place. Following the emergence of young players like Steve Davis, Sammy Clingan and Kyle Lafferty to name but three, Sanchez will hope that the years ahead bring further joy for Northern Ireland supporters and qualification for the finals of the 2008 European Championships for the first time ever!

DID YOU KNOW?
Northern Ireland forward Derek Dougan got a nasty shock when he scored a last-minute equaliser for Wolves against Millwall in their Second Division match in April 1967. Dougan turned to celebrate with a fan who had rushed on to the pitch only to discover it was a Millwall supporter who promptly punched him in the face!

DID YOU KNOW?

When Ian Stewart scored the only goal for Northern Ireland against West Germany on 17 November 1982 at Windsor Park, it was his first in senior soccer. At one time on the dole in his younger days, he had played the guitar to earn a living.

Chapter Three
Northern Ireland Managers

PETER DOHERTY

October 1951 – February 1962

There were people who used to say that the flame-haired Doherty who danced his way through English football with Blackpool and Manchester City in the 1930s was a discontented footballer. Doherty was not pompous or petulant, sulky or ill-mannered. Indeed, it would be impossible to meet a more gentle and courteous man. Doherty's discontent was with the system – he was a football trade unionist ahead of his time.

The former Coleraine junior bus conductor who became an Irish national hero won a League Championship medal with Manchester City in 1936-37, and during the war years scored all of Ireland's four goals against the Combined Services. In 1945 he went one better as he helped Derby County win the Midland Cup, scoring five times when the Rams beat Aston Villa in the second leg of the final at the Baseball ground. After a spell with Huddersfield Town, he helped Doncaster Rovers to the Third Division (North) title in 1949-50.

Northern Ireland had never employed a team manager when Doherty took them over in October 1951. They had certainly never even begun to generate the atmosphere of comradeship and dedication he achieved. He was obviously fortunate to have two admirable lieutenants in Spurs' Danny Blanchflower and Jimmy McIlroy of Burnley. Both were rational, gifted and intelligent footballers, just as he had been. The three of them planned the tactics and cut their coat according to their cloth. The first high point was reached in November 1957 when Northern Ireland at long last won in England – and at Wembley.

The following year even this was surpassed when, after drawing 2-2 with Italy at Belfast in a match that was friendly only in name (the Hungarian referee of what was meant to be a World Cup match had been fogbound), the Northern Ireland side proceeded to beat them 2-1 and qualify for the World Cup Finals in Sweden.

There too, they excelled themselves, beating Czechoslovakia and holding West Germany to a draw and in the end beating the Czechs in a play-off to reach the quarter-finals, where their tired and depleted team lost to a rampant France. But even the inspiration and the tactical wisdom of Doherty could not make up for ill-fortune, including the loss of the previous February of the team's gifted centre-half Jackie Blanchflower, shaken by the experience of Manchester United's tragic air crash at Munich.

Doherty returned to England to go on to managing Bristol City. He did so efficiently enough but his chief flair and brilliance were to be seen as an international team manager, fulfilling all the special demands of that task. Above all, he could create the climate of psychological well-being in which matches can be won. He later held scouting posts at a number of clubs and after retiring he lived in Fleetwood, largely shunning publicity until his death in April 1990.

BERTIE PEACOCK

November 1962 – September 1967

Bertie Peacock was a footballer who not only scaled the heights for both club and country, but was also a wonderful ambassador for the game. After beginning his career with Coleraine, he soon joined Glentoran, prior to signing for Celtic in the summer of 1949. He played for the Parkhead club for more than a decade, where his performances earned him 31 international caps for Northern Ireland.

Celtic's team of the 1950s contained such greats as fellow Irish international Charlie Tully and the irrepressible Bobby Evans. Though the Bhoys largely underachieved during that era, Peacock did help them win the domestic double of League and Cup in 1953-54, some three seasons after a victory in the Scottish Cup Final. In 1957 he was a member of the Celtic side that won the League Cup, beating rivals Rangers 7-1 in the final.

Peacock wrote his name into the annals of Northern Ireland football history with his performances in the 1958 World Cup Finals in Sweden, and was dubbed 'The Little Ant' because of his great industry in the Irish midfield. He was also a member of the Great Britain side which met the Rest of Europe in the Irish FA's 75th anniversary match.

After turning down offers to manage both Morton and Blackpool, he returned to Northern Ireland to become player-manager of his first club, Coleraine. He managed Coleraine for 12 years, in the last of which he guided the Showgrounds' club to their only Gibson Cup League triumph. He had led them to success in the Irish Cup in 1965 and 1972 and into Europe but after that League success, he decided to step down, though he remained at the club as a director.

Peacock succeeded Peter Doherty as national team manager in November 1962 and famously gave George Best his international debut against Wales in April 1964. Six months later his Irish side lost 4-3 to England in a seven-goal thriller. Sadly, Peacock had to relinquish his post as national team manager due to business commitments in 1967, and was replaced by former winger Billy Bingham.

BILLY BINGHAM

October 1967 – August 1971 &
February 1980 – November 1993

The father figure of football in Northern Ireland, Billy Bingham holds the record for the longest-serving British international manager, having been in charge of Northern Ireland for a total of 15 years, including one spell of 13 years (1980-1993).

Sunderland paid a large fee for Bingham after an outstanding display for the Irish League against the Football League in 1950. He went on to make 42 consecutive appearances for Northern Ireland in the 1950s. A likeable man with a good sense of humour, Bingham was a superb dribbler and crosser of the ball. His playing days ended after a broken leg in 1965 but before then he had played his part in helping Northern Ireland reach the quarter-finals of the 1958 World Cup Finals in Sweden.

Bingham's first managerial post was at lowly Southport in December 1965. They had a good run to the fifth round of the FA Cup that season and Bingham embarked on a youth campaign, which paid off when the club won promotion to Division Three in 1966-67 as runners-up. Indeed, there was great sadness at Haig Avenue when Bingham moved to take over the reins at Plymouth Argyle. He was not very successful at Home Park, however, and when he was unable to get the club out of the Third Division, the fans began to show their discontent and Bingham was sacked. After spells with Linfield and the Greek national side, he returned to England as manager of one of his former clubs, Everton in 1973. The team was badly in need of reconstruction and with neighbours Liverpool doing so well, it was always going to be a struggle. He brought in some useful players but when honours did not come, he was sacked in January 1977.

A master tactician, Billy Bingham became Northern Ireland's most successful national team manager, taking the country to two World Cup Finals in 1982 and 1986. In 1982 Bingham, who was a member of Doherty's 1958 side that reached the quarter-finals, not only emulated the exploits of that squad but some might say, surpassed it! Appointed manager for a second time in 1980, the Irish began their quest for a place in Spain with a fairly uninspiring goalless draw against Israel but the rest of the qualifying campaign saw victories at Windsor Park against Portugal and Sweden and draws, home and away against the Scots. However, following defeats in Sweden and Portugal, Northern Ireland's hopes of qualification slipped – until Israel surprisingly defeated the Portuguese 4-1. This left Bingham's side needing a point: in an emotionally charged night at Windsor Park, a Gerry Armstrong goal gave them both points.

In the finals themselves, draws against Honduras and Yugoslavia left them needing either a high-scoring draw or a win against hosts Spain in Valencia. Everyone knows that Gerry Armstrong's goal allowed them to qualify for the second round of the competition. Unfortunately, Northern Ireland went out of the competition at the next stage after a 2-2 draw with Austria and a 4-1 defeat to a very talented French side.

In 1986 Northern Ireland under Bingham continued to be a force to be reckoned with. If they gained a point against England in their final qualifying game, they would win a place in the World Cup Finals in Mexico. A fighting backs-to-the-wall display and a magnificent display of goalkeeping by Pat Jennings saw them play out a goalless draw and qualify for the finals. After a draw against Algeria, Northern Ireland were defeated 2-1 by Spain and needed a point from their final group game against Brazil to progress. However, as expected the Brazilians ran out winners 3-0 and Ireland's World Cup adventure was over. Though Bingham remained manager for a further seven years, this was the end of a golden age, the last occasion when the likes of Pat Jennings, Jimmy Nicholl, Billy Hamilton and Gerry Armstrong would play for their country.

TERRY NEILL

August 1971 – March 1975

Terry Neill's long association with Arsenal began in 1959 when he joined them as a 17-year-old after being spotted playing for Bangor. He made his debut the following season as a wing-half but was later switched to centre-half by manager Billy Wright. He made 241 League appearances for the Gunners before losing his place to Frank McLintock, who also succeeded him as captain. This intelligent, witty man was a strong, uncompromising player who could be physical or skilful as the situation demanded, making up for his lack of pace with sound positional sense.

He was good enough to make his Northern Ireland debut at 18 against Italy and kept his place for the next 12 years, winning 59 caps and doubling as player-manager and captain in his later years in the side. The most memorable moment of his career came in his 50th international for Northern Ireland when he scored the winning goal against England at Wembley in a rare Irish victory. During his time in charge of the national team, Neill managed with distinction and great professionalism.

He left Highbury to become player-manager at Hull City and at 29 was the youngest boss in the Football League. His management career was eventually to lead him to Tottenham Hotspur in 1974 and then back to Highbury two years later to succeed Bertie Mee. His masterstroke was to bring back coach Don Howe from Leeds United and their partnership guided Arsenal to their three successive FA Cup Finals from 1978-80, plus their near miss in the Cup Winners' Cup in 1980 when they lost to Valencia on penalties. But even this favourite son of Highbury could not escape the usual fate of managers when things begin to go wrong, and after seven years in charge he was sacked at the end of 1983. It was his first real setback in a 25-year career in football. He left football after this to work for a number of charitable organisations before running Terry Neill's Sports Bar in Holborn, London.

DAVE CLEMENTS

March 1975 – May 1976

Dave Clements was a man of stature – the epitome of professionalism, principle and integrity. Having played his early football as a winger in his native Northern Ireland for Portadown, he joined Wolverhampton Wanderers. Unable to break into the Molineux club's League side, he moved on to Coventry City.

He soon broke into the Sky Blues' side and just two months after making his League debut for the Highfield Road club, he was making his full international debut for Northern Ireland against Wales. Though he didn't have the best of debuts as the Welsh triumphed 5-0 at Windsor Park, Clements went on to win 48 caps for his country.

At Highfield Road, Clements was converted into a left-back and it was from this position that he netted his first goal at international level in the 1-0 defeat of Scotland in October 1967. On leaving Coventry, Clements signed for Derek Dooley's Sheffield Wednesday where he demonstrated his ability as a cultured passer of the ball who seemed to play the game unhurriedly, in his own time – a sure sign of class. Blessed with a muscular physique, he was adept at retaining possession by shielding the ball and it was rare that an opponent hustled him out of his rather measured stride.

His next club was Everton but like so many of the players at Goodison Park in this era, he suffered from frequent team changes. Whilst on Merseyside, he proved a positive influence on the club's youngsters, and in March 1975 he surprised few when he took the reins of the Northern Ireland side while still a First Division regular.

Not only had Clements succeeded Terry Neill as manager, he also replaced him as captain. In January 1976 he jumped at the opportunity of a transfer from Everton to New York Cosmos – Pele et al – but in doing so, he gave up the chance of a long-term career in international management. The authorities decided his managerial contract could not be renewed because 'a manager located in the United States was not in the best interests of the Irish FA'.

DANNY BLANCHFLOWER

June 1976 – November 1979

Not very quick nor a good tackler, Danny Blanchflower excelled as a reader of the game, a beautiful passer and a player with a rare ability to change tactics in the process of a match. Blanchflower was a thinker, not just a footballer. He was a master tactician with an ability to spot weaknesses in the opposition and exploit them or to plug any deficiencies in his own side.

Although it was Aston Villa who took him into the First Division, after he had played for both Glentoran and Barnsley, club honours did not come his way until he joined Spurs in December 1954 for a fee of £30,000. Under manager Bill Nicholson, Blanchflower became an inspirational figure both on and off the pitch, leading the White Hart Lane club to their greatest-ever achievement – the 1961 League and FA Cup double – and to FA Cup success in 1962 and then on to European Cup Winners' Cup glory the following year. Blanchflower was also Footballer of the Year on two occasions. For Northern Ireland he was the driving force behind one of his country's finest hours, captaining them to the quarter-finals of the World Cup in Sweden in 1958, only to be beaten 4-0 by France.

After a successful spell as a journalist, he was appointed manager of Northern Ireland, succeeding Dave Clements. He was not the most of natural of managers, though he remained in charge for three-and-a-half years. One of Blanchflower's last matches in charge saw Northern Ireland beaten 5-1 by England. Following his departure, he was replaced by

Billy Bingham, embarking on a second stint in charge of the national side.

Two months later in December 1978, Blanchflower took charge, albeit reluctantly of Chelsea. After just nine months at the helm, he resigned. He felt so alienated by present-day values and what he saw as the absence of loyalty and integrity in the game. Also of course, he had been out of contact with day-to-day football for 15 years and his appointment had looked doomed to failure from the start. One senior player confided: 'He's fascinating to listen to, but we're never quite sure what he's trying to say.'

BRYAN HAMILTON

February 1994 – January 1998

Bryan Hamilton was a terrier-like midfielder who began his career at Linfield and as a £5 part-timer, won his first Northern Ireland cap in 1968. After impressing during the 1971 Home International Championships, Ipswich Town signed him for £26,000 later that year. He moved to Everton in November 1975 for £40,000 but was not a regular at Goodison Park. In October 1980 he was transferred to Tranmere Rovers as their player-manager.

Hamilton made his final appearance in November 1983 but remained in charge at Prenton Park until February 1985 when he was sacked. He had steered the club through a number of crises before his departure. On being appointed manager of Wigan Athletic, he led the club to success in the 1985 Freight Rover Trophy Final at Wembley and the following season to fourth place in the Third Division. He then left Springfield Park to take over the reins at Leicester City. However, he couldn't prevent their relegation to Division Two and the Foxes were struggling the following season when he was sacked. Hamilton returned to Wigan but had a rather ambiguous role upon his return to the Lancashire club. The club struggled with very low crowds and little success on the pitch, but the genial Irishman managed to keep the side in the Third Division for four seasons, which was a miracle in itself!

Hamilton lost his job in March 1993 but was later a surprise choice to succeed Billy Bingham as Northern Ireland manager – the first full-time occupant. He got off to a flying start as his side pulled off a surprise 2-0 win over Romania. His first major challenge was to lead Northern Ireland to qualification for Euro '96. He failed but his team put up a respectable performance and only just lost out to their neighbours in the Republic of Ireland for a play-off place. The highlights of the campaign included a memorable double over Austria, including a 5-3 home win and a draw with group winners Portugal in Lisbon. Sadly, the next World Cup campaign was a let-down, with the side's worst moment coming in the neutral city of Zürich when Northern Ireland crashed 1-0 to Albania! That defeat and a few other disappointments, along with news that the Northern Ireland boss had lost the respect of his players, saw his contract with the national side terminated.

LAWRIE McMENEMY

February 1998 – October 1999

Lawrie McMenemy rocketed to fame as the manager of Southampton. He turned the south coast club into a force to be reckoned with, and his strong personality and ability to communicate with players and fans made him admired by many. McMenemy was a strong disciplinarian, a legacy of his days in the Guards. Behind a warm veneer there was a man ready to make the most difficult of decisions.

As a player, he failed to make the grade at Newcastle United and joined his local club Gateshead, but in 1961 an injury ended his career and he became trainer/coach at the club. In 1964 he was appointed manager of Bishop Auckland and transformed them into Northern Premier League champions. After two years as coach at Sheffield Wednesday, he was appointed manager of Doncaster Rovers and in his first season at Belle Vue took them to the Fourth Division Championship. However, when the Yorkshire club were relegated in 1971, he was sacked. A week later he was appointed manager of Grimsby Town and again at the end of his first season in charge, they too won the Fourth Division title.

In the summer of 1973 he accepted an offer to become Ted Bates' assistant at Southampton but six months later he was appointed the club's full-time manager. At the end of that season, the Saints were relegated and McMenemy came in for a lot of criticism when they did not bounce straight back, but he did take the club to a shock FA Cup victory over Manchester United in 1976.

McMenemy signed a number of experienced professionals and in 1977-78 the Saints won promotion to the First Division and a year later reached the League Cup Final. In 1983-84 Southampton enjoyed their best season in the top flight when they finished runners-up. In June 1985 McMenemy moved to Sunderland but had a tough time at Roker Park, and in April 1987 he was sacked.

After three years out of the game, he returned as assistant-manager to England boss Graham Taylor. His next appointment as Northern Ireland team boss and successor to Bryan Hamilton stunned everyone. Along with coaches Pat Jennings and Joe Jordan, the three were labelled 'The Dream Team' but in truth, his time in charge of the national side was nothing short of a disaster. He started well enough with a couple of victories in friendlies but in competitive games, Northern Ireland continued to fail and in October 1999 McMenemy rejected a new contract.

SAMMY McILROY

January 2000 – October 2003

Sammy McIlroy joined Manchester United in 1969 and two years later made his debut for the Red Devils in the local derby at Maine Road. Yet despite a 63,000 crowd, McIlroy showed considerable maturity and even scored. He made a few more appearances over the next couple of seasons but did not really establish himself until the 1973-74 season as United plunged into the Second Division. He then went on to make over 400 appearances for the club, scoring 68 goals.

McIlroy was a midfielder of energy and attacking purpose whose inspiration was important as United clinched the Second Division championship. He played in the 1976 FA Cup Final and won a winners' medal the following year. In February 1982 he signed for Stoke City but after a disappointing time at the Victoria Ground, he returned north to join United's rivals, Manchester City.

On quitting playing McIlroy, who won 88 caps for Northern Ireland, went into management with non-League Macclesfield Town. He had great success with the Silkmen, winning two Conference Championships and triumphing against rivals Northwich Victoria in the 1996 FA Trophy Final. McIlroy helped Macclesfield win promotion to the Football League. In their first season in the League, Macclesfield won promotion to Division Two but in January 2000, McIlroy left the Moss Rose club to manage Northern Ireland. Though spirits in the Northern Ireland camp improved, results in the competitive games didn't!

McIlroy did unearth David Healy and in his first game in charge, Healy scored twice in a 3-0 defeat of Luxembourg. McIlroy's tenure as boss of the national side saw him hampered by problems both on and off the field of play. Players retired and there seemed a never-ending stream of players withdrawing from squads for one reason or another. The former United man was also most unfortunate to be in charge when a number of major controversies caused front page headlines in the newspapers.

In February 2001 came the booing and jeering of Neil Lennon from a small section of home fans in Northern Ireland's 4-0 home defeat at the hands of Norway. Then a few months later came the 'Prague Five' headline in the Czech Republic. Rounding it all off was the death threat made to Lennon prior to him captaining the side against Cyprus at Windsor Park. Sadly, he pulled out of the game and later announced his retirement from international football. After this, both wins and goals proved elusive for the Northern Ireland boss. Following defeats in the home and away games against Armenia, McIlroy left to become manager of Stockport County.

The popular McIlroy is now manager of Nationwide Conference side Morecambe.

LAWRIE SANCHEZ

January 2004 –

The son of John Sanchez who played for Arsenal and Watford between 1957 and 1961, he started his career as an associated schoolboy with Reading before leaving to play for Thatcham Town. He later returned to Elm Park and spent seven seasons with Reading, winning a Fourth Division Championship medal in 1978-79. The club were relegated in 1982-93 but he was instrumental in helping the Royals win promotion back to the Third Division at the first time of asking. He had scored 29 goals in 298 games for Reading when Dave Bassett signed him for Wimbledon in December 1984.

Sanchez was an ever-present for the Dons in 1985-86 and helped Bassett achieve his objective of First Division football, when the club finished third in Division two behind Norwich City and Charlton Athletic. Sanchez's outstanding performances for the Dons led to him winning the first of three full caps for Northern Ireland – his mother was from Belfast – in the European Championship qualifier against Turkey.

The highlight of his career came in the 1988 FA Cup Final against Liverpool when he headed home Dennis Wise's free-kick for the only goal of the game. In the seasons that followed, Sanchez struggled with injuries and a loss of form but recovered to win back his place in the side. An excellent club man, he scored 35 goals in 284 games for the Dons before leaving Wimbledon in March 1993 to see out his career with a brief stint at Swindon Town.

He cut his teeth in management with Sligo Rovers in the League of Ireland, taking them to the last four of the FAI Cup before returning to Wimbledon as the Dons' assistant-manager. In February 1999 he was appointed manager of Wycombe Wanderers, helping them stave off relegation which at one time had seemed inevitable. Sanchez stayed at Adams Park until September 2003 when following ten games without a win, he parted company with the club.

Though Jimmy Nicholl had seemed the likely replacement for Sammy McIlroy as Northern Ireland manager, Sanchez shocked everybody by taking the job. On his appointment, Sanchez promised three things – to score a goal, to move up the rankings and to win a game!

In his first game in charge in February 2004, David Healy broke the goalscoring drought of some 1,298 minutes but the Irish were beaten 4-1 by Norway. A month later came Northern Ireland's first victory in three years, when they beat Estonia 1-0 with Healy again the man on target. Following a successful Caribbean tour came Sanchez's first taste of competitive football, but Poland won 3-0 at Windsor Park. There followed entertaining draws against Wales and Austria but in 2005 the team suffered defeats to Canada, England, Poland and Germany as well as playing out a disappointing draw against Malta. After a 2-0 defeat of Azerbaijan, Northern Ireland – thanks to Lawrie Sanchez's tactics and David Healy's strike – beat the much-fancied England 1-0. Not surprisingly, Sanchez has secured a place in the long and proud football history of Northern Ireland.

Northern Ireland fans have now started to believe that the country can qualify for the finals of Euro 2008 and who knows, with Lawrie Sanchez at the helm, anything is possible!

ENGLAND 3 NORTHERN IRELAND 3

At ANFIELD, LIVERPOOL, 20 OCTOBER 1926.

English football critics openly boasted that this season would see mighty England once again on the pedestal of fame and the game against the Irish at Anfield would provide them with their first victory of the season – a victory which was to lay the foundation of the Home International Championships.

With two splendid, fighting sides battling for victory, there was never a dull moment. For an hour and a half, the spectators saw football as it should be played. They saw goals scored and the only disappointment in terms of the travelling Irish fans was the referee, who was perhaps the only man in the ground who didn't think England's second goal was yards offside!

England did all the early attacking and Elisha Scott playing on his home ground produced the game's first save when he turned Bullock's effort round the post. However, it wasn't too long before the home side opened the scoring. Eight minutes had been played when George BROWN turned home Ruffell's cross from the left-wing. The Irish drew level through the Sheffield United forward GILLESPIE, after Toner had easily beaten Cresswell before flighting his cross to the far post. Sunderland's Bert McInroy in the England goal appeared jumpy after this goal and never settled down. Indeed, it wasn't long before the visitors had taken the lead through Everton's IRVINE. Ireland completely dominated the first-half and went further ahead towards the interval when Hugh DAVEY who led the line well, headed home Irving's deep cross.

Early in the second-half a fine through ball from Green found SPENCE and though he looked yards offside, the referee waved away Irish claims and allowed the Manchester United winger to go on and shoot past the advancing Scott. England pressed hard for the equaliser and it was only the brilliance of Elisha Scott that prevented them from doing so. Twice in quick succession he denied goalbound shots from Bullock and Walker and even when he was beaten, full-backs Rollo and McConnell made goal-line clearances. However, there was little he could do when BULLOCK forced the ball home from close range following good work by Spence.

A division of the spoils was a fitting termination to one of the best games played between the two countries, though in the dying moments, only a brave save by Scott at the feet of George Brown denied England from scoring a fourth!

NORTHERN IRELAND 7 WALES 0

Ireland's greatest ever victory 7-0 over a hapless Welsh side saw Linfield's Joe Bambrick net 6 of his side's goals as the home side tore holes in a poor visitors defence. BAMBRICK opened the scoring in the first few minutes as good work by McCambridge allowed the Ireland centre forward to lose his marker and shoot past Finnegan. Ireland went 2-0 up midway through the first half when a pin-point cross from Chambers who was causing all sorts of problems for the Welsh defence CROSSED for Bambrick to head home. BAMBRICK completed his hat-trick just before half time, finishing off a move that involved Chambers and Rowley before firing high into the roof of the net.

BAMBRICK was again on the score sheet early in the second half as McCambridge beat Keenor and put the ball through for Ireland's number 9 to make it 4-0. The Welsh defence were nowhere to be seen as BAMBRICK who thought he must have been offside went on to take the ball round Finnegan before rolling it into an empty net. Bambrick and McCambridge then combined well before the latter was pulled back by Bennion as he shaped to shoot. The referee had no hesitation in awarding the penalty which McCLUGGAGE tucked away with ease.

With the game heading towards the close BAMBRICK netted his sixth and Ireland's seventh goal following a mis-kick by Russell that inadvertently placed the ball in the Linfield forward's path. The autographed ball was later presented to Joe Bambrick by Fred Keenor, the Welsh captain.

FEATURED MATCH NO. 3

NORTHERN IRELAND 2 SCOTLAND 1

AT WINDSOR PARK, BELFAST, 20 OCTOBER 1934

An overhead cable fault at Shaftesbury Square led to a break down in the tram services in Belfast and this meant that several thousands of Irish fans streamed late into Windsor Park.

The early stages of the first-half saw both sides come close to opening the scoring but it was the visitors who took the lead midway through the first-half when Patsy GALLAGHER netted from close range. Elisha Scott in the Ireland goal then saved well from Connor, as the Sunderland forward's header looked like extending Scotland's lead. Ireland too came close with both Martin and Stevenson bringing good saves out of Dawson.

When Ireland came out for the second-half there were gasps of dismay when the home crowd realised they had just 10 men. Goalkeeper Scott had picked up an injury towards the end of the first-half, and he was replaced in goal by Manchester United's Walter McMillen.

The wing-half had a disappointing first-half but he went on to have an outstanding second period, saving everything the Scottish side could throw at him. He saved at the foot of the post from Cook and then tipped Connor's rasping drive round the post. He then smothered Herd's long-range effort before saving from the dangerous Cook.

However, it wasn't all one-way traffic and both Duggan and Stevenson brought fine saves out of Jerry Dawson. Linfield's Joe Gowdy had earned considerable criticism when he was named in the starting line-up for Ireland but there is little doubt that he was Ireland's best player on the day, with an outstanding display of both attacking and defensive football.

Martin missed an easy chance to level the score before Jackie Coulter smashed a shot against the crossbar. There were just five minutes remaining when MARTIN made amends for his earlier miss by shooting home from close range following good work by Duggan. Then with time running out, Joe Gowdy picked up the ball in midfield, beat two Scots and floated the ball across the face of the Scotland goal where COULTER ran in to head into the roof of the net past a startled Jerry Dawson.

The crowd went wild, finding it hard to believe that Ireland's 10 men had come back from being a goal down at half-time to clinch a famous victory. Hats were thrown into the air by the home fans, who did not care if they ever got them back again!

FEATURED MATCH NO 4

ENGLAND 2 NORTHERN IRELAND 2

AT GOODISON PARK, LIVERPOOL, 5 NOVEMBER 1947

England, victors over Belgium and Wales, faced an Ireland side who in their last game had unexpectedly beaten Scotland 2-0.

A crowd of nearly 55,000 gave the teams a great welcome when they appeared, Ireland resplendent in green jerseys with bold black numbers on a white background and England in their usual white and black outfit.

In the opening minute Wilf Mannion tricked two defenders before finding Matthews on the other wing, but keen Irish tackling relieved the situation. Red-haired Doherty came close to opening the scoring for Ireland but in the main the early exchanges belonged to the home side. Mortensen missed a chance for England by blazing over from 10 yards out and then he and Mannion each failed to cap fine runs by Finney.

Mannion once again could not turn a Finney centre to account, but Hinton in the Irish goal deserved praise for smothering a point-blank shot from Lawton. The home side were relieved when a flying header from Davy Walsh flew inches over Frank Swift's crossbar. Doherty then went close with a long range shot before Matthews' effort from fully 30 yards was inches too high. Just before the interval, Peter Farrell playing on his home ground, shot powerfully from 25 yards but Swift rose to the occasion with a magnificent full length save.

After nine minutes of the second-half, Ireland took the lead when Davy WALSH cleverly diverted a Doherty shot past Swift. Eglington then swept inside Hardwick but Swift stood firm in holding the left-winger's stinging drive.

There were 20 minutes remaining when England were awarded a penalty for a Vernon charge on Matthews. Hinton made a brilliant save from Mannion's spot-kick. In the 80th minute, Mortensen narrowly missed with a flying header but then three minutes later, Billy WRIGHT put England level, this despite appeals from Irish defenders who felt the Wolves' player had committed a foul in forcing the ball over the line.

Then on the verge of full-time, Tommy LAWTON gave England the lead but the Irish were not finished and with the referee putting his whistle to his lips to blow for full-time, up popped Peter DOHERTY to earn his side a thoroughly deserved draw.

FEATURED MATCH NO 5

FRANCE 3 NORTHERN IRELAND 1

AT COLOMBES STADIUM, PARIS, 11 NOVEMBER 1952

This match will be remembered for France's two first-half goals – not because of their brilliance, but for the circumstances surrounding them. The first was scored with 12 French players on the field and the second was made by a player who passed the ball from a position yards offside!

Ireland had the first chance of the game when following a foul on McMorran, McCourt's free-kick passed narrowly outside French keeper Ruminiski's left-hand post. Then the Glasgow Celtic left-wing pairing of Peacock and Tully combined well to set up a chance for McMorran. The Barnsley player gave Jonquet a lot of trouble and came close to getting on the scoresheet on a couple of occasions.

Then the French came into the game and their forwards were shooting at every opportunity. After 26 minutes, Cisowski was injured in a collision with McCourt and was replaced by former French captain Baratte. Then the French trainer instructed the injured Cisowski to take to the field but the substitute Barette did not go off. In fact, it was he who led to the home side's first goal after half-an-hour. He seemed to handle the ball before crossing for UJLAKI to sweep past Uprichard. The entire Irish team clustered round the referee to protest about the goal but in fairness, the referee had not signalled for Cisowski to come on again!

France's second goal came six minutes later. Strappe was so far offside before passing to KOPA, who netted, that the Irish defence just stood still and looked at him.

Ireland pulled a goal back five minutes before the interval. The goal followed a free-kick taken by Blanchflower after a foul on D'Arcy. There was a mix-up in the goalmouth and the ball eventually went to TULLY who gently placed it in the net.

Ireland were fighting like Trojans for the equaliser and Tully narrowly headed over before Danny Blanchflower's shot scraped the bar. France too had their chances but Uprichard saved well from both Kopa and Strappe. McCourt then tried a long range shot which went inches wide. With the minutes ticking away and Ireland hoping for that equaliser, KOPA saw a gap in the Irish defence and raced right down the middle to send a low ground shot past Uprichard and into the net.

FEATURED MATCH NO 6

NORTHERN IRELAND 3 PORTUGAL 0

AT WINDSOR PARK, BELFAST, 1 MAY 1957

Northern Ireland easily beat Portugal in this World Cup qualifier and in doing so, scored the highest number of goals by an Ireland side in home internationals since 1936. But while the attack followed the Peter Doherty doctrine of shooting hard and often, the marksmanship still left much to be desired!

As well as scoring three goals, Ireland had the ball in the net on a further three occasions. Early chances were missed by McMorran and Simpson as the home side piled on the pressure from the kick-off, but Ireland had to wait until the 22nd minute before opening the scoring. Jimmy McIlroy was fouled some 25 yards out from goal and from the resultant free-kick, Peacock touched the ball to CASEY who shot high into the roof of Gomez's net.

McMorran's lumbering style was causing problems for the Portuguese defence and he created chances for both Simpson and Bingham which were wasted. Cush also came close with a rasping drive which Gomez did well to turn round the post.

Ireland extended their lead on the hour mark when from a Cunningham free-kick, SIMPSON headed home after Pires had made a desperate effort to clear his lines.

Perhaps the most dramatic incident of the night occurred after 76 minutes when McMorran careered in from the left-wing. Out came Gomez to cut off his shot, but as he dived at the centre-forward's feet, he writhed in pain. He attempted to push it to Pedroto, the right-half but McMorran fastened on to it and flighted the ball into the net. Virgilio pulled it down with his hand and a penalty was awarded.

McIlroy shaped up to take the kick, but flicked it to Blanchflower. The referee ordered it to be re-taken, for he judged Blanchflower to have moved into the penalty area before McIlroy touched the ball. McILROY tried a direct shot in his second attempt and he easily beat Gomez, the Portuguese keeper who played brilliantly.

The result left Ireland with an outside chance of a play-off place in their group, if they could beat Italy in Belfast, and provided Portugal could take a point off the Italians in their two fixtures.

FEATURED MATCH NO 7

ENGLAND 2 NORTHERN IRELAND 3

AT WEMBLEY STADIUM, LONDON, 6 NOVEMBER 1957

Northern Ireland became the third country ever to beat England at Wembley, the others being Hungary and of course Scotland. The crowd of 35,000 was the smallest to watch an international match at Wembley but millions more were watching the game on television.

Dick Keith playing in his first international, soon checked A'Court, England's new cap by kicking into touch when a dangerous left-wing move developed. Manchester United's Tommy Taylor missed a golden chance after just eight minutes when with only Gregg to beat he failed to turn in a low square pass from Kevan. England then put in a spell of furious attacks with Edwards blasting wide and Kevan bringing the best out of Gregg. Ronnie Clayton shot narrowly wide with a terrific volley from a pass from his Blackburn team-mate Bryan Douglas.

After 32 minutes, Jimmy McIlroy was brought down from behind by Billy Wright and the referee had no hesitation in awarding Northern Ireland a penalty. McILROY took the penalty and Hopkinson got his fingers to it, but the ball – after touching the post – glanced in over the goal-line to Hopkinson's evident disgust.

Minutes later Peacock, on the goal-line with Gregg some yards away, prevented an almost certain equaliser by chesting down a header from Taylor. In another England raid, Kevan could not get enough power behind a header and Gregg saved easily.

Early in the second-half, Douglas beat two defenders before Gregg dived at his feet and cleared. Gregg distinguished himself again shortly afterwards by saving a pile-driver by Clayton. In the 58th minute, Derek Kevan gave Alan A'COURT the chance to level the scores – the Liverpool winger shooting past Gregg from an acute angle.

Northern Ireland went ahead again after 67 minutes when Duncan Edwards lost the ball to McCRORY, who seized on it and his shot went in off the far post. Six minutes later, the visitors extended their lead when SIMPSON raced in to meet a pin-point cross from Billy Bingham. England defenders claimed the Rangers' forward was offside but the referee had no hesitation in signalling the goal.

Matthews and Finney did their best to inspire England and with just ten minutes remaining, EDWARDS' hard low shot pulled a goal back for England. Though the home side pressed hard in the minutes that remained and the Irish goal led a charmed life, the visitors held on to record a memorable victory, their first win over England for 30 years!

FEATURED MATCH NO 8

NORTHERN IRELAND 1 CZECHOSLOVAKIA 0

AT HALMSTAD, SWEDEN, 8 JUNE 1958

The only British team to win their own group match in the World Cup Finals of 1958 in Sweden, Northern Ireland's success was a triumph of tactics, gained as much off the field as on it. Manager Peter Doherty and skipper Danny Blanchflower evolved moves to exploit the weakness of the Czechs.

The pitch was slippery after a fall of rain and the Irish players especially in the early stages found great difficulty in keeping on their feet. The Czechs tore into the attack and only a goal-line clearance from Cunningham prevented Horvorka from giving the Czechs the lead. Ireland too had their chances with Wilbur Cush chasing a long ball from defence only to be beaten to it by keeper Dolejsi who clutched it at the second attempt.

Ireland fought hard and it came as no surprise when after 21 minutes they took the lead. McParland forced a corner which he took quickly. He played the ball to McIlroy who got into line to lift it across the face of goal to the waiting CUSH who headed into the roof of the net past Dolejsi.

Docherty's tactics again became evident as Ireland refused to sit back. They attacked with even greater tenacity and a minute later McParland almost scored again from an acutely timed Cush free kick. Cush himself had a chance to extend Ireland's lead but he was tackled by Novak as he shaped to shoot. It was all Northern Ireland: Derek Dougan had two magnificent chances to put his side 2-0 up, but on each occasion he was foiled by good saves by Dolejsi.

In the second-half, the Czechs pushed hard for the equaliser and both Dvorak and Borovicka saw their shots well saved by Harry Gregg. As the game wore on, the Czechs had numerous chances to draw level, but at times it was the luck of the Irish which kept them out. In the end though, Danny Blanchflower and his boys were the victors – victors on merit.

FEATURED MATCH NO 9

NORTHERN IRELAND 2 WEST GERMANY 2

AT MALMO, SWEDEN, 15 JUNE 1958

In a game for sheer excitement, top-class football and honest endeavour, Northern Ireland's 2-2 draw with world champions West Germany is unlikely ever to be surpassed. In fact, the game is still talked about today by many Germans who consider it a classic, in the mould of the Eintrackt Frankfurt-Real Madrid European Cup Final some two years later.

Without doubt, Northern Ireland's hero was goalkeeper Harry Gregg who played with a badly swollen ankle which he twisted in the opening minutes. He bordered on the miraculous and proved that he had regained his confidence following the reactions of the Munich air crash.

In the opening minutes, Gregg produced a couple of fine saves, first from Uwe Seeler and then the dangerous winger Rahn. Yet despite the early pressure coming from the Germans, it was Northern Ireland who took the lead after 18 minutes when McPARLAND fired home from close range after good work by Casey.

However, within two minutes, the Germans were level when their No.1 dangerman RAHN fired through a crowd of players and past the unsighted Gregg. The Irish keeper then saved well from Seeler and full-back Jusowiak whose long-range shot swerved viciously in the air. Helmuth Rahn was through on goal in the closing minutes of the first-half but Gregg was alert to the situation and took the ball off the striker's toe.

Northern Ireland regained the lead just before the hour-mark when Aston Villa winger Peter McPARLAND netted his and his side's second goal. The Irish then had to withstand an awful lot of pressure but with Gregg in such outstanding form and the defence refusing to buckle, they held firm until the 67th minute when SEELER drew the Germans level. Both sides had chances to win it in the closing stages but the Germans came closest in the dying moments when Gregg produced the last of a series of magnificent saves.

It was this performance, when he threw himself about his penalty area with vigour and determination, that earned the Manchester United keeper the title of 'Goalkeeper of the Tournament' – there have been few, if any, better displays from an Irish goalkeeper.

The point was enough to take Germany into the quarter-finals but Northern Ireland – who were applauded off the pitch by the Germans – had to face Czechoslovakia in a play-off at Malmo the following Tuesday.

FEATURED MATCH NO 10

NORTHERN IRELAND 2 CZECHOSLOVAKIA 1

AT MALMO, SWEDEN, 17 JUNE 1958

Czechoslovakia, surprisingly defeated Argentina 6-1, finished equal on points with Northern Ireland and so this necessitated a play-off at Malmo, the Tuesday after the Irish had drawn with West Germany. Instead of staying there, the Irish party made the 100-mile journey back to Tylosand, a move that in retrospect was not really conducive to the right preparation.

The hero of the German game, Harry Gregg was not fit and indeed had to hobble to the match with the aid of a stick. The game was only eight-minutes-old when his replacement Norman Uprichard, going for a ball, twisted his ankle. Though the players were tired and it was a hard struggle for supremacy after their battle against the Germans 48 hours earlier, Ireland played superbly, with Blanchflower having his best game of the tournament.

However, after 19 minutes, disaster struck when the unmarked ZIKAN headed home a Popluhar free-kick. But the Czechs failed to press home their advantage and Uprichard was rarely troubled. Almost on half-time, Bingham raced down the right-wing before pushing the ball inside for Cush. He had a couple of shots blocked before deciding against a third and instead crossed the ball for McPARLAND to smash home.

Early in the second-half the Irish suffered more injuries, when Uprichard broke a bone in his hand after colliding with the post in attempting to stop a shot from Dvorak. Then Bertie Peacock strained a muscle – but remarkably the Irish made it to extra-time.

At the break for extra-time, Billy Bingham persuaded the weary Irish players to do an exercise programme of calisthenics. The exhausted Czechs couldn't believe their eyes. The tactical bluff worked and in the 99th minute, Danny Blanchflower curled a free-kick beyond the Czech defence for Peter McPARLAND to volley home what proved to be the winner.

The Czechs then fought like Trojans to level the scores but right-half Bubernik, an ice hockey international went up to the referee – a French gendarme – complaining of being pushed in the back. The referee pushed him aside and the Czech promptly spat in his face. Not surprisingly he received his marching orders! Even then they came close to scoring but the only time the ball went in the net was when Peacock 'scored' at the other end, only for the referee to adjudge his effort to be offside.

Northern Ireland had reached the quarter-finals of the World Cup and though they lost 4-0 to France, they went home as heroes.

FEATURED MATCH NO 11

NORTHERN IRELAND 3 ENGLAND 3

AT WINDSOR PARK, BELFAST, 4 OCTOBER 1958

Northern Ireland's first match since the epic days of the World Cup in Sweden saw them entertain England at a very wet Windsor Park. The rain-drenched fans saw the teams share six goals in one of the most dramatic and thrill-packed international matches.

The Irish took the lead through CUSH, the hardworking Leeds United player shooting past Colin McDonald from close range but it wasn't long before England drew level through a superb strike from their best player on the day, Bobby CHARLTON. The young Manchester United forward had already come close to scoring but on each occasion was foiled by the heroics of his club team-mate Harry Gregg.

Northern Ireland went ahead for a second time when Bertie PEACOCK, who suffered an Achilles tendon injury, fired home through a crowded penalty area. Ireland could have extended their lead as McIlroy and McParland combined well on the left to create a goalscoring opportunity for Bingham. His shot was parried by McDonald and the clearance completed by Don Howe. The game was fast flowing and there were chances at both ends before Tom FINNEY levelled the scores. In doing so, the Preston North End forward beat the record of goals for England held by Bolton's Nat Lofthouse.

Tommy CASEY, whose tenacity and bustling tactics were a feature of the game put the home side into the lead for the third time in a most entertaining game. Even then, the visitors were not finished and Finney, who was coming towards the end of a most illustrious career created a chance for the irrepressible CHARLTON to smash the ball past Gregg and make the score 3-3.

England's defence had been out of sorts all afternoon and if any side was going to clinch this thriller, it had to be Northern Ireland. Both McParland and Bingham created havoc down the flanks with Banks and Howe at a loss as how to stop them. Unfortunately, the ball didn't break kindly for the home forwards and the game finished all-square.

Such was the high standard of play that the result was relegated to an irrelevancy though if Northern Ireland had had Bobby Charlton in their ranks, the outcome would have been decided well before half-time!

FEATURED MATCH NO 12

NORTHERN IRELAND 5 CYPRUS 0

AT WINDSOR PARK, BELFAST, 21 APRIL 1971

The supremacy of Northern Ireland in this one-sided European Nations Cup tie was never questioned after a 90-second goal from newly appointed captain Derek DOUGAN – a header from a Sammy Todd cross.

The home side piled on the pressure. Jimmy Nicholson's shot was turned round the post by Herodotous before Bryan Hamilton put a shot just wide of the post. Hamilton then had the ball in the net, only for the 'goal' to be disallowed for offside. Hamilton was in the thick of the action and he put Dougan through but the lanky striker's shot landed on the roof of the net. Dave Clements chipped the keeper but the ball clipped the bar prior to Todd just failing to reach a ball after a McMordie-Hamilton move.

The exasperation finally ended in the 44th minute when BEST picked the ball up just outside the penalty area. His powerful shot struck the upright before landing in the net as the goalkeeper stood motionless assuming it was going wide!

The second-half was only two minutes old when Best struck again. Newcastle full-back David Craig pushed a long ball up to Dougan on the left; on it went to BEST who cut round the full-back and placed it perfectly in the far corner.

Northern Ireland now had the whip hand and the hunger for more goals. George Best smacked a shot against the crossbar and then he hit another just wide. Ireland's third goal came after 56 minutes and was scored by BEST direct from a left-wing corner. Up went McMordie but he missed it and it curled into the net with Allan Hunter and the Cypriot goalkeeper ending up there too!

The home side continued to push forward and a Derek Dougan header went inches past the post before Hamilton's goalbound shot was deflected for a corner. Dougan and Nicholson then went close before Best again smacked a shot against the upright. Northern Ireland's fifth goal came in the 85th minute, shortly after the visitors had made two substitutions. Jimmy NICHOLSON hit a powerful shot that took a deflection off Koureas and so wrong-foot Herodotous.

Despite the mediocrity of the opposition, there was a feeling of satisfaction that at last Northern Ireland had scored goals! The result put them at the top of their Nations Cup qualifying table.

FEATURED MATCH NO 13

ENGLAND 0 NORTHERN IRELAND 1

AT WEMBLEY STADIUM, LONDON, 23 MAY 1972

This victory, only Ireland's sixth in 79 meetings with England, was an occasion to savour and to place alongside the 1957 Danny Blanchflower-led triumph on the same ground.

Some of the Irish side were only half-fit, playing defensively and then hitting a goal before containing Alf Ramsey's England team.

All the early pressure came from the home side with Jennings producing outstanding saves from both Marsh and Macdonald before Tony Currie's cross-cum-shot almost caught the Irish keeper out. England continued to mount attack after attack but the Irish defence in which Allan Hunter was outstanding, held firm. There were half chances for Macdonald and Bell but then after 33 minutes, Northern Ireland scored a fairytale goal.

With the rain falling heavily, Wolves' midfielder Danny Hegan took a corner on the left – a planned set piece. He put a short one to the near post, but with Derek Dougan having wandered to the far post and Willie Irvine having missed the ball, it hit player-manager Terry NEILL on the head. It then bounced between Neill and England keeper Shilton before the central defender pivoted and hit it into the net.

Neill was playing in his 50th international for Northern Ireland, and this was only his second goal in a superb international career.

Jennings brought off some remarkable saves from Macdonald, Bell and Marsh before a one-handed effort from a Mike Summerbee cross which must rank among the greatest-ever saves ever seen at Wembley.

England introduced substitutes Martin Peters and Martin Chivers but though they pressed for most of the second-half they were unable to break down the Irish defence. Jennings continued to deny the England forwards. Although the tension at the finish was almost unbearable, as time was added on for the referee having had treatment for two cramp-related incidents, Northern Ireland held out to record a remarkable win.

This was no fluke win for Northern Ireland. There were no off-the-line clearances, no lucky breaks – they played it tight, snatched the goal and then decided to hold out come what may!

FEATURED MATCH NO 14

SPAIN 0 NORTHERN IRELAND 1

AT LUIS CASANOVA STADIUM, VALENCIA, 25 JUNE 1982

In defeating Spain 1-0 to qualify for the second phase of the 1982 World Cup, Northern Ireland not only achieved soccer history but produced one of the greatest ever performances by a British team in any World Cup. To do so with just 10 men for the last half-an-hour of a match played in a temperature of 34°C was bordering on the miraculous. As manager Billy Bingham put it, they killed the Spanish bull in its own ring!

After only three minutes, Pat Jennings saved at the feet of Lopez Ufarte, whilst four minutes later, Ufarte forced the Arsenal keeper to make another difficult save. Ireland's first shot of the game came after 27 minutes when 17-year-old Norman Whiteside let fly from outside the box – Arconada saved easily. Just before half-time, referee Ortiz shows Billy Hamilton the yellow card for a foul. Sammy McIlroy protests and is also booked!

A string of hard tackles by the Spaniards went unpunished so Northern Ireland took justice into their own hands shortly after half-time. Armstrong started the move in midfield. Confronted by three defenders he passed the ball wide to Hamilton on his right. Hamilton set off like a greyhound, dogged by Spain's Tendillo all the way down the wing. When he hammered in a low centre, Spanish goalkeeper and captain Arconada could only palm the ball out into the path of Armstrong, who came charging through in support. ARMSTRONG seized the chance to fire home, despite the efforts of the diving Spanish defenders.

In the 53rd minute, Jennings intercepted yet another Lopez Ufarte shot and then two minutes later tipped a rising shot from Quini over the bar. Spain never changed their tactics however – high crosses into the centre where Chris Nicholl promptly headed them away!

On the hour, tragedy struck when Northern Ireland were reduced to 10 men as Mal Donaghy was sent-off for merely pushing away Camacho at the far touchline, with the linesman pointing at the Luton defender as the culprit. The Paraguayan referee – who had never officiated a match in Europe – showed Donaghy the red card!

The Spaniards continued to body check and niggled constantly in the minutes that remained but the Irish who had pulled all their players back into defence, held on. Yet with 11 minutes to go and Spain becoming more desperate, Gordillo broke through the Irish rearguard but shot straight at Jennings. The Irish keeper then brought off a couple of world class saves, the last just two minutes from full-time from Camacho.

Northern Ireland showed top form throughout the game. They displayed great spirit and courage and always looked likely to score on the break. Gerry Armstrong's goal was the 100th scored in the first round's 36 matches – it also proved to be the last!

FEATURED MATCH NO 15

AUSTRIA 2 NORTHERN IRELAND 2

AT THE VICENTE CALDERON STADIUM, MADRID, 1 JULY 1982

The national team's stature rose with every game in the 1982 World Cup Finals and perhaps never more so than in this match against Austria, when they came from behind to draw 2-2. It was a game that the Irish could have won, but equally it could so easily have gone the other way.

The Northern Ireland defence in which Jimmy Nicholl was outstanding found itself under early pressure from the Austrians as they went for the game's first goal. Jim Platt made an outstanding double save, first from Max Hogmayr and then Ernst Baumeister. However, when the Irish broke from defence, there was always danger, especially on the right from Gerry Armstrong's accurate crosses.

It was from this type of build-up that the game's first goal came in the 27th minute. Armstrong accelerated past two Austrian defenders, his sheer strength getting the ball across to the waiting HAMILTON who headed past Koncilia. Just before the interval, Armstrong missed a golden opportunity of extending Ireland's slender lead.

At half-time, Austrian manager George Schmidt made two changes, introducing Reinhold Hintermaier and Kurt Welzl. What a dramatic difference this made as within five minutes of the restart, the Austrians were level. A left-wing corner by Prohaska went straight to Baumeister who hammered it towards goal – Jim Platt had it covered until Bruno PEZZEY just as he was about to be challenged by Chris Nicholl, back-heeled the ball past the Middlesbrough keeper.

In the 67th minute, Austria took the lead after being awarded a free-kick on the edge of the penalty area. Jurtin flicked the ball to HINTERMAIER who scored from 20 yards past a static Platt.

But in the 74th minute came Northern Ireland's equaliser. Armstrong lost the ball in a challenge but it broke for full-back Jimmy Nicholl racing down the right flank. As the keeper came out to meet him, he floated over a perfect cross for HAMILTON to head into the net with an unmarked Martin O'Neill waiting to pounce as well. The Burnley striker who toiled until he almost collapsed had written himself into the record books, by joining Peter McParland as the joint Irish record scorer in a World Cup finals match.

The final minutes were dominated by Northern Ireland who twice came close to snatching the winner. However, they had to be satisfied with a point which put the team in the final second-phase fixture against France – needing a win to reach the semi-final in Seville!

FEATURED MATCH NO 16

NORTHERN IRELAND 1 WEST GERMANY 0

AT WINDSOR PARK, BELFAST, 17 NOVEMBER 1982

Arguably there has never been a better performance by the national side than when they beat the champions West Germany 1-0 in a European Nations Cup tie.

Right from the start, Northern Ireland went on the offensive, a predetermined plan promised by manager Bingham. Within minutes of the kick-off, the plan almost succeeded as Brotherston flicked on a short corner to Martin O'Neill whose cross found his namesake John O'Neill. His powerful shot cannoned off the upright with an almighty thud!

Then Norman Whiteside, appearing as if he was going to play the ball out to Stewart on the left-wing, cut inside and unleashed a left-foot drive from fully 35 yards that Schumacher in the German goal could only push out, unable to grasp it cleanly. In the 14th minute, Jimmy Nicholl then hit a long ball across the pitch to Hamilton. The Burnley forward then flicked it on to Ian STEWART on the edge of the box. He went round Manny Kaltz before tucking the ball into the net.

Northern Ireland continued to dominate the first half until the closing stages when Littbarski, an orthodox winger with jinking skills and plenty of pace, beat four Irish players on the left before forcing Platt to tip his shot over the bar. Lothar Mattaus also had his shot beaten away by Platt and the Middlesbrough keeper ended the half by holding on to a powerful header by Hans-Peter Briegel.

During the early stages of the second-half, Littbarski had a 'goal' disallowed (and justifiably so) by the Norwegian referee, for offside. Both sides had chances in front of goal as the minutes ticked away, with Hamilton for Ireland and Schuster for Germany missing the best of those created by their team-mates.

Throughout the majority of the game, there was never any question of Northern Ireland being overrun, although the pressure on them in the final ten minutes as the rain cascaded was intense. When the final whistle eventually went, the fans, drenched to the skin and shivering with cold, remained on the exposed Spion Kop, cheering and waving their flags, having witnessed one of the most glorious chapters in Northern Ireland's football history.

FEATURED MATCH NO 17

WEST GERMANY 0 NORTHERN IRELAND 1

AT VOLKSPARKSTADION, HAMBURG, 16 NOVEMBER 1983

The achievement of defeating one of the world's greatest soccer nations at home in this European Championship qualifier remains as if a dream!

The Germans slumped to the first home defeat by a European country since 1974. They had lost 1-0 in Belfast and now in Hamburg, a city with a greater population than the whole of Northern Ireland.

The Germans had the better of the opening exchanges, with Karl Heinz Rummenigge getting the better of new cap Gerry McElhinney and bringing a fine save out of Pat Jennings. Though McElhinney started shakily, he soon found his feet: a tackle on Meier as he shaped to shoot saved a certain goal.

Northern Ireland hit back midway through the half as Armstrong on the right and Stewart on the left got the better of Briegel and Dremmler respectively. In fact, Stewart repeatedly flashed past the German right-back, creating half-chances for both Hamilton and Whiteside.

As the first-half wore on, Jennings in the Northern Ireland goal produced a couple of world-class saves, first from Meier and then from a fierce drive from Rummenigge that was destined for the top right-hand corner of his net. Just seconds before the interval, McClelland lost Karl Heinz Rummenigge for the only time in the game, but McElhinney's block tackle saved the day.

Then just five minutes into the second-half, Northern Ireland took the lead. It was created by Queen's Park Rangers' winger Ian Stewart, who went down the left-wing, cut in and let fly. Schumacher was unable to hold the powerful shot and pushed the ball out to Ramsey. He passed to WHITESIDE, who pivoted and fired into the net. The unbelievable had happened. The young Irishman, not one to normally show emotion, raced towards the hordes of Northern Ireland fans before being surrounded by his jubilant team-mates.

The Germans then turned on the heat. Northern Ireland lived dangerously and on occasions luckily! Yet even so, full-back Jimmy Nicholl found time to get forward, beating four German players before shooting inches wide on a mesmerising run from his own half.

Then as the minutes ticked away, the equaliser looked on the cards as German star Lothar Matthaus saw his shot cleared off the line by Nicholl. Yet in a counter-attack, Billy Hamilton should have scored when he tried to take the ball round the keeper instead of shooting.

The Germans had been tactically destroyed by manager Bingham and an Irish team who responded to every command.

FEATURED MATCH NO 18

FAROE ISLANDS 0 NORTHERN IRELAND 5

AT THE LANDSKRONA STADIUM, SWEDEN, 11 SEPTEMBER 1991

This 5-0 win over the Faroe Islands in a completely one-sided European Championship Group Four qualifying tie, was Northern Ireland's highest-ever away triumph. Portsmouth striker Colin Clarke netted a hat-trick to bring his total to 12 goals in 31 games – equalling the international record held by Joe Bambrick, Billy Gillespie and Gerry Armstrong.

When the two teams met prior to this meeting, they played out a 1-1 draw. This match, watched by just 1,623 spectators was a virtual 'repeat' of that game. There was one significant difference – this time the chances were put away with clinical precision.

Northern Ireland took the lead after just seven minutes when Alan McDonald back-headed Kingsley Black's corner towards the back post. The ball was scrambled off the line but there was Kevin WILSON to stab the ball home.

Five minutes later, Iain Dowie gained possession, and held the ball well on the edge of the area before releasing it to Black. The Nottingham Forest winger sent over a pin-point cross on to the head of Colin CLARKE, who completely unchallenged headed past Faroes keeper Martin Knudsen.

On the quarter-of-an-hour mark, a Robbie Dennison free-kick found Dowie, who headed on for Queen's Park Rangers central defender Alan McDONALD to beat Knudsen with a swivelling volley. It was his second goal for his country and a most brilliantly taken one.

Northern Ireland had many more chances during the remainder of the first-half. The bobble-hatted goalkeeper for the Faroes prevented further goals with a series of saves, the most impressive being when he turned round an Iain Dowie header that was destined for the bottom right-hand corner of his goal.

Three minutes into the second-half and Dowie, always in the action, crossed to the far post where Robbie Dennison knocked it back to CLARKE. Despite a mis-hit, the Portsmouth striker scored his second goal of the game.

After 67 minutes, Dowie again – this time with a long ball – found the head of Gerry Taggart. His header was looping into the net when Morkore used his hands to prevent it crossing the line. The Finnish referee immediately pointed to the spot, ordered off Morkore and up stepped CLARKE to blast the ball past Knudsen and so equal that record.

FEATURED MATCH NO 19

NORTHERN IRELAND 5 AUSTRIA 3

AT WINDSOR PARK, BELFAST, 15 NOVEMBER 1995

In one of the most entertaining games at Windsor Park for many years, the crowd of 8,400 saw eight goals, with five of them scored by Northern Ireland. The national side hadn't scored five goals in a home game since George Best netted a hat-trick in a 5-0 defeat of Cyprus some 24 years earlier!

Neil Lennon was at the centre of most of Northern Ireland's early moves in the game, setting up chances for both Gray and Dowie. Michael Hughes and Keith Gillespie were giving the Austrian full-backs a torrid time and it seemed that the first goal wouldn't be too far away. However, it took until the 27th minute for the home side to open their account when a cross from Hughes reached Dowie. The West Ham man knocked it into the path of O'NEILL and his unerring left-foot shot found the net.

That goal had been coming for a long time and so it was no surprise when five minutes later, Northern Ireland extended their lead. Iain DOWIE upended in the penalty box, smashed the resultant penalty past Austrian keeper Michael Konsel.

Even with the winds at their backs in the first-half, Austria struggled and went in at half-time 2-0 down. The second-half was only eight-minutes-old when Wrexham defender Barry Hunter marked his home debut by hooking home a Michael Hughes cross.

The Austrians pulled a goal back through SCHOPP before Phil GRAY got the final touch to another Hunter effort. Northern Ireland extended their lead even further when Mike O'NEILL netted his second goal of the evening – a marvellous chip following great work from Hughes who chased after, and then raced away with, Alan Fettis' punched clearance.

Austria's two substitutes STUMPF and WETL reduced the arrears for the visitors but by then it was too little too late. Northern Ireland had saved the best to last, but unfortunately it was too late to salvage anything from the European Championships Group Six except pride, pleasure and promise.

FEATURED MATCH NO 20

NORTHERN IRELAND 1 ENGLAND 0

AT WINDSOR PARK, BELFAST, 7 SEPTEMBER 2005

England, with the likes of Wayne Rooney, David Beckham, Steven Gerrard, Frank Lampard and Michael Owen in their side were beaten 1-0 by Northern Ireland. Before this game, it had been 33 years since that last happened – and 78 years since a home win over England had been achieved!

The game was all but eight-seconds-old when the rampaging James Quinn flattened Arsenal's left-back Ashley Cole – this was to become a common theme throughout the evening. In fact, it almost seemed as if different Northern Ireland players took it in turns to tackle and in doing so, rattle England's team of star players.

Midway through the first-half David Beckham's stunning free-kick struck the bar but in open play, the home side coped admirably thanks to the display of central defenders Hughes and Craigan.

After that, chances were few and far between at either end in the first-half but on 43 minutes, wonderkid Wayne Rooney was booked for elbowing Keith Gillespie. The Manchester United striker then unleashed a torrent of abuse at anyone within earshot: even his captain David Beckham, when he tried to calm the young player down came in for the same treatment. Rooney was lucky not to be red-carded on the stroke of half-time following another reckless challenge, this time on Chris Baird.

England pressed hard at the start of the second-half but Northern Ireland's players never stopped running, tackling and fighting for every loose ball. In fact, the longer this World Cup qualifier went on, the more the Northern Ireland fans believed that the impossible was actually possible and that one goal would do it!

It came in the 74th minute when Aston Villa's Steve Davis controlled a poor clearance from England keeper Paul Robinson and then waited, before delivering a pass into the path of striker David HEALY. He smashed home a tremendous right-foot drive – his 19th goal at international level and without doubt, the most celebrated!

The crowd inside Windsor Park erupted – Northern Ireland fans hugged each other in disbelief. Some twenty minutes later, following four minutes of injury time, the Swiss referee blew the final whistle. This was one of the biggest shocks the game has ever seen.

BILL McCRACKEN

Bill McCracken was a colourful character, one of the most famous, yet most controversial personalities the game has seen. He angered fans up and down the country, as his perfection of the offside-trap caused blood to boil wherever he played. He took the taunts – and much physical abuse from spectators – in his stride and always with a smile!

Born in January 1883, he joined the local Belfast Distillery club as a part-timer, being employed as an apprentice in the building trade. On the football field, McCracken was soon among the honours, winning Irish League and full caps when only 19, and twice reached the Irish Cup Final. English and Scottish clubs took notice, and his fast-developing talent held the attention of Everton, both Celtic and Rangers as well as Sunderland and Newcastle United. All the clubs chased the right-back for several months with United eventually securing his signature in May 1904. It was a controversial transfer as the FA immediately announced that an inquiry would take place, to investigate whether McCracken had received illegal payments as part of Newcastle's offer.

McCracken played his part in three League Championship victories during the Edwardian era, and he was also a member of a trio of FA Cup Final teams, picking up a winner's medal in 1910. His organisation at the back proved in many ways the important factor in United's success. Along with another United defender Colin Veitch, McCracken created an offside-trap which caught opposing forwards almost at will.

At Villa Park he was hit on the head by a pipe and had onions thrown his way. At Stamford Bridge his shirt was ripped and he was spat on. At Roker Park he was peppered with oranges, lemons and bananas, while he always collected a fistful of coins thrown in his direction. Because McCracken was such an expert at the offside game, many spectators lost sight of his brilliance as a defender. His speed of recovery was excellent, and he could use the ball short or long and kick with either foot.

He was born a rebel and had many differences of opinion with referees! Once after being sent-off for questioning a decision, he wrote a four-page letter to the official strongly noting a few points about the game of football. Instead of receiving a seven-day suspension, McCracken was handed a four-week ban! He was also at loggerheads for many years with the Irish FA. A regular for his country since 1902, he would have won a pile of caps but for a personal crusade over payments. He demanded more appearance money, but when it was not forthcoming, he quit the party on the eve of a game with England in the 1907-08 season and was banned until differences were patched up much later in 1919.

McCracken was over 40 when he played in his last international, and was one of the oldest players to represent the Magpies. He went on to score eight goals in 432 games for United and holds record service as a player, on United's books for almost two decades. In February 1923 he was allowed to leave St James Park and become manager of Hull City. He built a useful side, and in 1929-30 took his side within a whisker of reaching Wembley. Hull City reached the semi-finals, knocking out his former club on the way. However, relegation cost McCracken his job and after a brief spell with Gateshead, he took over the reins at Millwall.

After rows with the board and a further relegation he left to join Aldershot, managing the Shots either side of the Second World War. He later became a talent scout – a very respected one – and whilst with Watford, discovered Pat Jennings. He was presented with a special medal by the FA for his long service to the game in 1978. McCracken died in January 1979, just nine days before his 96th birthday.

BILL LACEY

One of the great characters of Merseyside football, Bill Lacey, an irrepressible little Irish international, could fill any outfield position. Wexford-born Lacey began his career in Dublin with Shelbourne before joining Everton in 1908. Unable to settle at Goodison Park, a deal was struck towards the end of the 1911-12 season that saw Lacey and forward Tom Gracie move to Anfield, with Harry Uren the Liverpool outside-left moving in the opposite direction. Liverpool certainly got the better of the deal, as Lacey went on to make 257 League and FA Cup appearances for the Anfield club over nine seasons in a variety of positions but starring as a winger on either flank.

He immediately went into the Reds' first team, playing in the last 11 games of that season with just one goal to his credit – against Tottenham Hotspur on 16 March 1912. Though he was never renowned as a goalscorer, his tricky wing-play set up numerous chances for his team-mates. After making only 20 League appearances in the Liverpool side in 1912-13, Lacey established himself firmly in the side the following year. Scoring five goals in seven games at inside-forward, he helped Liverpool reach their first major Cup Final – but it was Burnley who took the FA Cup home with them after their 1-0 victory at the old Crystal Palace ground.

Bill Lacey averaged over 30 League games a season for the next five years – effectively a decade because of the First World War – and was an important member of the Liverpool side that won the First Division Championship two years running in 1921-22 and 1922-23, wearing the No.7 jersey both seasons. However, he was only selected nine times during the 1924-25 season, by which time he was approaching his mid-thirties. It was no real surprise when he was allowed to leave Liverpool and move across the Mersey to join the New Brighton club.

Lacey played for Ireland while with both Everton and Liverpool. He made his debut against Wales in 1913, and won 10 and 12 caps respectively, before winning his 23rd and final cap at the age of 36, by which time he was playing for New Brighton. A jovial character with a prominent chin that was a target for cartoonists, he later returned to Ireland to see out his career with his first club Shelbourne.

BILLY GILLESPIE

The son of a policeman, Billy Gillespie spent the early part of his playing career in junior football in Londonderry. It did not take long for the forward's talent to be spotted, and at the age of 17 he signed for Derry Institute. In 1910 he was about to sign for Linfield when Leeds City manager Frank Scott-Walford persuaded him to turn professional and join the West Yorkshire club.

Second Division Leeds City were to be expelled from the Football League just nine years later, because of financial irregularities, but Gillespie spent barely 18 months with them before moving to another Yorkshire outfit. Sheffield United paid £500 for his services and offered him the maximum wage, then £4 a week.

Billy Gillespie's career at Bramall Lane spanned an astonishing 20 years, during which time he scored 137 goals in 492 games for the club. Although he missed out on an FA Cup winner's medal with United in 1915 because of a broken leg, he was instrumental in the Blades lifting the trophy again some ten years later, when they beat Cardiff City 1-0 in the Wembley final.

Whilst with United, he won 25 caps for Ireland, making him to this day, the Blades most capped international. In fact, Gillespie's career at international level got off to a most explosive start, when on his debut he scored twice as Ireland marked their first-ever victory, 2-1 over England. The following year in 1914, Gillespie was a member of the first-ever Irish side to win the British Championship, following victories over England and Wales and a draw against Scotland at Windsor Park.

Gillespie, who was a fierce-looking inside-forward, had quite an incredible record in matches with the old enemy, with seven of his 13 international goals coming against England. His total, which was subsequently equalled by former Portsmouth and Southampton striker Colin Clarke in 1992, was finally beaten after standing for 78 years when David Healy struck his 14th international goal in Northern Ireland's 2004 summer tour of the Caribbean. Gillespie's was an impressive total when you consider that in his era the only international matches that took place were against the other three home nations.

In 1932 he left England and returned to Ireland for a nine-year stint as manager of Derry City. Held in such a high regard by Derry, they changed their strip to red and white stripes in reverence to Gillespie and the Blades. During his tenure as Brandywell boss, he guided the club to two City Cup triumphs, as well as four successive Irish League runners-up spots. He also guided the club to the 1936 Irish Cup Final where they eventually lost 2-1 to Linfield, after the first meeting had ended in a goalless draw in front of a 23,000 strong crowd at Celtic Park.

When he left Derry City as manager in the summer of 1941, he settled in Kent where he lived until dying a month short of his 90th birthday in July 1981.

DID YOU KNOW?
Ireland's first victory over England saw them make an heroic comeback in the game in Belfast. England led 1-0 when Ireland were reduced to 10-men by an injury to one of their forwards. But two goals from Billy Gillespie lifted them to an historic victory.

PATSY GALLAGHER

The legendary Patsy Gallagher played 464 League and Cup games for Glasgow Celtic. Despite gracing the hallowed turf at Celtic Park in the 1920s, the reverence in which he was held lives on. Patsy Gallagher was born in the old Milford Workhouse in April 1893 and like many of his contemporaries, the family was destined to emigrate to Scotland. His parents went to Glasgow in search of work a few years after Patsy's birth and so began a tale of soccer greatness.

Patsy Gallagher was reputed to live and breathe football, and in 1907 he was playing for a juvenile side called Renfrew St James, one of the most successful sides in the area. He left school at 15 and began to serve his apprenticeship in carpentry at the famous John Brown's Shipyard. Selected to play for the Rest of Scotland against Lanarkshire, his stature and small frame were not seen as being suited to the more physical type of game that was traditional in that era. But Clydebank Juniors were the first to give him a chance and he played for them through the 1910-11 season.

His progress was steadily being brought to the attention of the Celtic manager Willie Maley, but as Gallagher starred for Clydebank, the season at Parkhead was a dismal one by their standards and new talent was urgently needed. The first time he was asked to play for the Bhoys, he was also asked to play for Clyde. Gallagher chose Celtic and so began the legend. He got his name on the scoresheet twice, and then on his next appearance – against an army team – he netted a hat-trick in a 5-0 win. Eventually he broke into the Celtic first team, displacing Paddy Travers. He helped them reach the Scottish Cup Final where they defeated Clyde. Having won a Scottish Cup medal, he nevertheless had to wait until 1914 for a League medal, and as war clouds gathered, he helped Celtic capture the Scottish Cup again.

Following the outbreak of the First World War, he went back to carpentry at John Brown's after being a full-time player for only one season. But the game went on and in 1915, the Parkhead club again won the title, with Gallagher recording a first-team hat-trick for the club in a 6-0 trouncing of Airdrie. He continued doing what he did best, scoring goals and helping his club to another record breaking season in 1916-17, as the Bhoys won another League title.

At the end of the hostilities, Gallagher was still working in the shipyard, as football could not provide sufficient money to keep a family. He went into the pub trade and purchased licensed premises in Clydebank. He continued playing football and in 1921 he had his best season for the club. He scored many memorable goals, including a brilliant individual effort against Hamilton Academicals – Celtic won the title by a narrow margin but it has become a part of the rich legend of the game. By this time, Patsy Gallagher was an international hero, having won the first of his 11 Irish caps and his star was still rising. He won his third Scottish Cup medal in 1923, but his most famous moment came two years later in his last Scottish Cup Final for Celtic.

The Bhoys were a goal down to Dundee and finding it difficult to break down a stubborn defence. Following a free-kick and in the ensuing scramble, Gallagher gathered the ball. Surrounded by defenders, he twisted and turned, weaved and feinted until halted near the goal-line – when he somersaulted over the line and into the net with the ball. A miraculous goal!

In October 1926 he joined Falkirk and remained on their books until his retirement in 1932. His career petered out as he reached 40 years of age and sadly for all his fans, his years at Brockville were not marked with any success. Gallagher was a ferocious competitor, totally committed to winning. However, another aspect to his character was revealed in 1953 after his death. Somebody found a drawer in his Clydebank pub stuffed with IOUs, amounting to hundreds of pounds which he had never bothered to redeem from his customers.

ELISHA SCOTT

Of all the goalkeepers to have pulled on the green jersey of Liverpool, none wore it with more distinction than Elisha Scott. The slim, sharp-faced Irishman – who kept guard between the posts at Anfield for more than 20 years – already followed in a long line of illustrious servants. His immediate predecessor was Kenny Campbell, the Scottish international who had taken over from the great Sam Hardy, winner of 21 caps for England.

Born in Ulster, Scott initially played for Linfield and Broadway United before moving to Merseyside. He made his Liverpool debut on New Year's Day 1913 in a goalless draw at St James Park, and so impressed Newcastle United that they made an immediate offer for the young Irishman. Scott was keen to accept, arguing that Campbell was so outstanding that he could never hope to replace him at Anfield. The Liverpool manager, Tom Watson, knew better however, and politely refused.

After his debut Scott had to wait until the following season for his second appearance. With Campbell in outstanding form, it was not until the 1914-15 season that he broke into the first team. War then interrupted his career and on the resumption of soccer, it was Campbell who was again the automatic choice. But by now the Scottish keeper was at the end of his Anfield career and decided to move back north. Between 1921 and 1923, he had helped Liverpool to successive League Championships – being ever-present in 1921-22 and conceding only 13 goals at Anfield during the 1922-23 campaign.

The 1920s were also the days of Dixie Dean, and no contest in the Football League was more relished than the clash between Dean and Scott. So fierce was their rivalry that on one occasion, when they were said to have met in the street, Dean nodded in acknowledgement, only to see Scott fling himself to the ground to save some imaginary header. The story is almost certainly apocryphal, but it was typical of the legend that surrounded these two footballing giants.

As the 1933-34 season drew to a close, Scott, who had made 467 appearances for Liverpool, decided to return to Ireland as player-manager of Belfast Celtic. He was capped 27 times while at Anfield and even added a further four caps to his tally after this, making his final international appearance at the grand old age of 42.

Elisha Scott would wear, even in summer, two or three jerseys and a couple of pairs of shorts pulled on over long-johns and knee-pads. This bulky apparel would be donned at least an hour or so before kick-off and he would then spend the remaining hour or so hurling a ball against the dressing-room wall to practise his catching. It was typical of a man who was a perfectionist and who helped turn goalkeeping into a fine art.

JOE BAMBRICK

Describing Joe Bambrick as a 'prolific goalscorer' hardly does justice to a player who is believed to have scored close on 1000 goals during his career. While the majority of Bambrick's goals came during his time with Linfield, the Belfast-born forward will probably be best remembered for netting a double hat-trick for Ireland in a 7-0 drubbing of Wales on 1 February 1930, an Irish record which is unlikely ever to be beaten!

The strongly built and powerful player's first taste of top-class football actually came with Glentoran, for whom he managed to score 44 goals in just 37 games during his one and only season at the Oval. By the start of the 1927-28 season, Bambrick had switched his allegiances to Windsor Park and Glentoran's cross-town rivals Linfield. By the end of his first season, he had found the net an incredible 81 times. However, two years later he was to eclipse even that phenomenal total when he scored an amazing 94 goals – six of which came against the Welsh on that memorable day at Celtic Park.

On the international front, Joe Bambrick had won his first cap against England in 1928, just 12 days short of his 23rd birthday. True to form, he scored an equalising goal at Goodison Park, just half-an-hour into the game. Despite terrorising defences at club level, over the next decade, he was rather surprisingly only chosen for the national side intermittently, eventually finishing with a very impressive tally of 12 goals in just 11 international matches.

In December 1934, Joe Bambrick -- who had naturally become a cult figure among Blues supporters – was on his way to England and Chelsea. Although he found the competition across the water a good deal more intense, he still managed a very respectable 37 goals in 66 appearances over three seasons at Stamford Bridge.

A move to Walsall ensued in March 1938 but his stay with the Saddlers was a brief one. It wasn't long before he returned to his beloved Linfield, for whom he eventually coached and scouted following his retirement from the game. Joe Bambrick, who died in October 1983, aged 77, was a true gentleman both on and off the pitch and was without doubt, one of the greatest strikers ever to have graced an Irish side. If he were playing for the modern day Chelsea in the much-hyped Premiership, his value would be incalculable.

DID YOU KNOW?
On 1 February 1930, Joe Bambrick scored six goals in Northern Ireland's 7-0 victory over Wales, the highest individual tally in a Home International.

PETER DOHERTY

Peter Doherty is regarded by many as the finest footballer ever produced by Ireland. Those who didn't know him regarded him as a discontented footballer, others felt he was a man and a player ahead of his time. He first worked as a bricklayer and bus conductor and started his career with Coleraine prior to a move to Glentoran, who he helped win the Irish FA Cup. In November 1933 he joined Blackpool and soon became conspicuous as a brilliant inside-forward, and in 1935 played against England and Wales.

After two years by the seaside, Doherty joined Manchester City for a club record £10,000 which was only a thousand short of the then British record. The Irishman was a star in the League Championship-winning side of 1936-37, scoring an incredible 30 goals in his 41 League appearances, but there was far more to Doherty's game than hitting the back of the net. He could tackle like a defender, dribble like a winger and shoot and head as well as any in the game, before and after the Second World War, to which Doherty and many of his generation lost the best years of his career.

From 1939 to 1945 he served in the Royal Air Force as a PT instructor-sergeant. He then joined Derby County for £6,000 and alongside another legend in Raich Carter, he helped the Rams win the 1946 FA Cup Final. He scored one of the goals in the 4-1 win over Charlton Athletic, but not before the ball burst in the last five minutes of normal time with the score at 1-1. Doherty claimed the first goal of extra-time and then laid on number three and number four to take the first post-war FA Cup back to the Baseball Ground.

Unfortunately the strong-willed Irishman fell out with the Derby board after directors refused him permission to take over as a licensee of a hotel near the club's ground, fearing that it would affect his game. Peter Doherty joined Huddersfield Town for £10,000, just seven months after the FA Cup triumph, and with an impressive goal tally of 17 in just 25 matches for County. But he stayed just three seasons at Leeds Road, scoring 36 goals in 87 appearances before leaving to become player-manager of Doncaster Rovers. In his first season at Belle Vue, Doherty scored 26 goals as Rovers won the Third Division, and though he retired as a player in 1949 he remained as manager until January 1958.

It is a travesty that such a distinguished player won just 16 full caps for his country, though he more than compensated for that by steering Northern Ireland to the quarter-finals of the 1958 World Cup as manager. That achievement was a fitting highlight of his 11-year tenure as manager of the national side which ended in 1962.

DANNY BLANCHFLOWER

Danny Blanchflower was not just a wonderfully gifted footballer but also one of the most tactically aware players of his generation. Like many working-class boys of his generation, Danny Blanchflower learned to play football at school and on the streets and waste ground of Belfast. During the early part of the Second World War, he formed his own club, Bloomfield United. He was establishing a reputation for himself and in 1942, shortly before his 16th birthday, he was signed as an amateur by the local professional team Glentoran. He returned from military service fitter and stronger, and soon won a place in Glentoran's first team in the Irish League. In February 1947, Blanchflower played for the Irish League against the Football League, a side containing the likes of Stanley Matthews, Billy Wright, Tom Finney and Tommy Lawton.

He fell out with Glentoran about money, and in 1948-49 their directors agreed that if an English club wanted him, he could have one-third of the transfer fee! Only Second Division Barnsley made an offer and in April 1949 he joined the Oakwell club for a fee of £6,500. Within six months of joining the Yorkshire club, Blanchflower won the first of his 56 caps for Northern Ireland. He played against Scotland at Windsor Park, but it wasn't the happiest of debuts as the Scots won 8-2.

In March 1951 he was transferred to Aston Villa for £15,000 but though he captained the side on many occasions, he became unhappy with the club and the way training was conducted. Blanchflower became one of the first to propose that players should train with a ball, as opposed to merely undertaking physical exercise.

In 1954, Blanchflower was on the verge of signing for Arsenal for a then record fee. At the last moment, the deal fell through and he went to Tottenham Hotspur for £30,000. Arthur Rowe, who had built the stylish Spurs team of the early 1950s, had retired because of illness and his successor Jimmy Anderson was a much more old-fashioned manager. He fell out with Blanchflower and removed him from the captaincy. In October 1958, Bill Nicholson replaced Anderson and though initially he disciplined Blanchflower by dropping him, he later reinstated him as captain. Although very different in character, they were both keen on new ways of playing, based on what they had seen of the control, passing, movement and possession of the Brazilians and the Hungarians.

Blanchflower had captained Northern Ireland to the quarter-finals of the 1958 World Cup and in the same year was voted Footballer of the Year by the football writers. In his early thirties, he was at the height of his powers and an intelligent creator of time and space on the pitch. In 1959-60 Spurs finished third in the First Division, having finished 18th in 1958-59. The following season, the North London club won the double with a style that made Spurs the second-favourite team of most football enthusiasts. For Blanchflower, it was a personal triumph recognised by a second award as Footballer of the Year. The FA Cup was won again the next year and the European Cup Winners' Cup the year after that, but the glory of 1960-61 could never be recaptured.

Danny Blanchflower was someone who could think and talk about the game as effectively as he played it. He had been writing columns in various papers since his Villa days for the Birmingham Evening Mail and then after his move south for the London Evening News. By the time of his retirement in 1964, he had ten years' experience and he worked for the Sunday Express as a columnist from 1964 to 1988. Blanchflower was a private man and refused to take part in the television programme 'This is your Life' in 1961, but he wanted people to know who he was and became the first professional footballer to appear on Desert Island Discs!

After retiring as a player he withdrew from football for several years, returning briefly as manager of Northern Ireland in 1978 and as manager of Chelsea in 1978-79, whom he failed to save from relegation. He eventually left the job less than a year after his appointment. In the later years of his life, he suffered from Alzheimer's Disease and died at his home in December 1993, aged 67. In 2003, the popular Irishman was inducted into the English Football Hall of Fame in recognition of his talents.

DID YOU KNOW?
When Northern Ireland legend Danny Blanchflower started his RAF aircrew training, he shared a hut with the actor Richard Burton!

BILLY BINGHAM

Billy Bingham was a small, elusive right-winger who provided fine deliveries from the flank. Among his dribbling skills he would 'pretend' to stumble whilst in control of the ball, a trick which would often throw his opponents off balance.

He started his illustrious playing career with Glentoran and after starring in a representative game for the Irish League in 1951, First Division Sunderland paid £8,000 to take him to Roker Park. Within a couple of years of his arrival in the north-east Bingham, who'd won the first of his 56 caps for Northern Ireland against France in May 1951, was a permanent member of the national side. He had scored 47 goals in 227 games for the Wearsiders when on his return from the 1958 World Cup Finals in Sweden, he joined Luton Town for a fee of £15,000.

For a winger, Billy Bingham was unusually combative in the air – as he showed on numerous occasions – although the majority of his goals came from long distance. In his first season with the Hatters, Bingham scored 14 goals including the winner in the FA Cup semi-final replay against Norwich City at St Andrew's. Though the Kenilworth Road club lost their top flight status the following season, Bingham was the Hatters' top scorer with 16 goals.

In October 1960 Bingham left Luton to join Everton, and though he was by now in his 30th year, he was supremely fit. The winger's penetrating style on the right flank became a key ingredient in the Merseyside club's 1962-63 League Championship-winning side. However, after he had lost his place in the Blues' side to Scottish international Alex Scott, he left Goodison Park to join Port Vale. He hadn't been with the Valiants long when in 1964, a broken leg brought his playing days to an end.

On hanging up his boots, he became manager of Southport and in his first season at Haig Avenue, led the Sandgrounders to promotion for the first time in their history. After spells with Plymouth and Linfield, Bingham took charge of the Greek national side before in the summer of 1973, being appointed manager of Everton.

The club finished seventh in his first season in charge. Having brought in players of the calibre of Martin Dobson and Bob Latchford, it seemed as if the club would win the 1974–75 League title, but after winning just one of their last five games, they finished fourth. After finishing in mid-table the following season, Everton then had a run of eight League games without a win and in January 1977, Bingham was sacked.

Awarded the OBE, Bingham managed the Northern Ireland side in two spells, leading them to the World Cup Finals in 1982 and 1986.

JIMMY McILROY

Though it is perhaps impossible to compare players of the 'modern' era to those who appeared in bygone days, most followers of Burnley would present an overwhelming case that 'Mac', signed from Glentoran for a bargain £8,000 in March 1950, was the finest Clarets' player of all-time. Even in the outstanding Burnley side that was forged in the late 1950s and peaked in the early 1960s as First Division champions, FA Cup finalists and European Cup ambassadors, Jimmy McIlroy was undoubtedly the most skilful individual talent in a team of all the talents. When the great man left Turf Moor in 1963, not only was the team never the same again, somehow the club was never the same either.

Jimmy McIlroy began playing football for the Craigavad Club near Bangor and his performances were soon being monitored by scouts from Glentoran. It wasn't long before he put pen to paper, and he eventually made his first team debut on the final day of the 1948–49 season. The following campaign saw him become a regular in the Glentoran side, where one of his team-mates was Billy Bingham.

In March 1950, Burnley boss Frank Hill became the latest in a long line of admirers to cross the water to assess the inside-forward's ability. He was treated to a particularly inspiring performance for Glentoran against Distillery and Hill was convinced – contracts were soon exchanged and Glentoran's bank account was boosted by £8,000 as McIlroy moved to Turf Moor.

Early the following season, an unsettled Harry Potts was transferred to Everton, with McIlroy seen as his natural replacement. So in October 1950, four days before his 19th birthday, Jimmy McIlroy made his First Division debut for Burnley, embarking on a truly memorable Football League career.

Within a year, in October 1951, whilst still a teenager, McIlroy won the first of 55 international caps for Northern Ireland against Scotland – his display ensured that he would be virtually a permanent member of his country's line-up as well as that of his club, for the next decade. In August 1955 McIlroy became acknowledged as one of the greatest football talents in these islands, when he was selected for a Great Britain representative side to play the Rest of Europe at Belfast's Windsor Park, to commemorate the 75th anniversary of the formation of the Irish FA.

In Burnley's League Championship-winning season of 1959–60 and the two campaigns that followed, the McIlroy/Adamson partnership was at its magnificent best, the engine room that drove a wonderful team. In 1962 the Clarets came agonisingly close to a League and FA Cup double, but a loss of form by the whole team over the closing weeks deprived the little East Lancashire club of immortality. As it was, McIlroy was just edged into second place in the 'Footballer of the Year' competition by is skipper Jimmy Adamson.

Then in February 1963 the unimaginable happened, as McIlroy was placed on the transfer list after a series of hush-hush meetings by the club's board of directors. It came as a shock to the genial Irishman, who then joined Stoke City for just £25,000. At the Victoria Ground, he played alongside such greats as Stanley Matthews, Denis Viollet and Jackie Mudie as the Potters went on to win the Second Division Championship at the end of his first season with the club. In 1964 Stoke reached their first-ever major final, but even with McIlroy in the side they were beaten 4-3 on aggregate by Leicester City in a two-legged League Cup Final.

In January 1966 he joined Oldham Athletic, struggling in Division Three as their player-manager, although he had intended to hang up his boots after leaving Stoke. After returning to the Victoria Ground as Stoke's chief coach, he spent just 18 days as team manager of Bolton Wanderers before abruptly leaving Burnden Park.

McIlroy then spent many years as a much respected journalist, primarily as a Sports Reporter but later developing a reputation as a fine features writer. Now retired, Jimmy McIlroy will forever be a sporting hero in his adopted town of Burnley – he was quite simply, the greatest Claret of them all.

PETER McPARLAND

One of Aston Villa's greatest post-war goalscoring wingers, Peter McParland, a hero of the 1958 World Cup, also ranks as his country's greatest outside-left. He first came to the notice of followers of Northern Ireland football when, at the age of 18, he played for Tandragee Rovers against the Irish League champions, Glenavon. He later played for Newry and Dundalk, from where Aston Villa manager George Martin bought him for a fee of just £3,880 in the summer of 1952.

Fast, direct and with a powerful shot in either foot, McParland quickly made his mark with Villa, going on to give them invaluable service for the next decade. His early form led to him winning the first of 34 full caps for Northern Ireland when in March 1954, he scored both his country's goals in a 2-1 defeat of Wales.

McParland was also the scorer of a number of goals for Villa during their run to the FA Cup Final of 1956-57 – one in the third round against Luton, two in the quarter-final against Burnley and another double in the semi-final with West Bromwich Albion. In the final itself, the Irish winger netted both his side's goals in a 2-1 win over Manchester United, a result which denied United the coveted League and Cup double. However, the final is best remembered for McParland's accidental clash with United keeper Ray Wood, who broke his jaw and was taken off to be replaced by Northern Ireland international Jackie Blanchflower in goal.

In 1958, McParland represented Northern Ireland in the World Cup Finals in Sweden, making an immense impact by scoring five goals in the tournament (including doubles against West Germany and in the play-off game against Czechoslovakia). McParland went on to play a major role as the injury-plagued side were beaten 4-0 in the quarter-finals by France.

In 1959-60 he helped Villa win the Second Division Championship and during the course of the campaign, in which he scored 25 League and Cup goals, he represented the Football League against the Italian League. In the two-legged League Cup Final of 1961, he netted the winner against Rotherham United, but the following January, having scored 120 goals in 341 games for Aston Villa – a phenomenal record for an out-and-out winger – he left to play for local rivals Wolverhampton Wanderers.

He never really settled at Molineux and moved to Plymouth Argyle where he ended his League career. Following a spell playing for the Atlanta Chiefs and then non-League Worcester City, he went into management with Glentoran, leading them to an Irish League title. He then spent much of his time afterwards coaching abroad, particularly in Cyprus (where he coached with Ray Wood!), Kuwait and Hong Kong from his base on the south coast.

Peter McParland scored with his first kick, 40 seconds after the start of his international debut for Northern Ireland against Wales on 31 March 1954 against Jack Kelsey. The Welsh goalkeeper was also making his first appearance.

DEREK DOUGAN

Known wherever he played as simply the 'Doog', Derek Dougan was one of the greatest characters Northern Ireland football has known. He shaved his head, then grew a beard, wore an American Indian headband and fought for players' rights as chairman of the Professional Football Association.

He began his professional career at Fratton Park, Portsmouth in the summer of 1957, having had a brief spell with Distillery, his home-town club. He remained with the south coast club until March 1959 when he was transferred to Blackburn Rovers for £15,000. A year later he had scored the two semi-final goals that defeated Sheffield Wednesday to take Rovers through to the FA Cup final against one of his future clubs, Wolverhampton Wanderers. Unbelievably, he posted a letter to the Lancashire club, seeking a transfer on the morning of their 1960 FA Cup Final, which 10-men Rovers lost 3-0.

Following the departure of Gerry Hitchens to Inter Milan, Aston Villa secured Dougan's services but within two years he was on the move again, this time to Peterborough United. There is little doubt that his spell with Posh in the Third Division helped to restore his sense of perspective, and in the summer of 1966 he took a pay cut to join Leicester City. Leading the Foxes forward line with his unique flair, he lapped up the crowd's adulation, not least on the occasion when he netted a superb hat-trick against his former club, Aston Villa.

The possessor of an excellent football brain, Dougan joined Ronnie Allen's Wolverhampton Wanderers where over the next eight seasons, he became a Molineux Legend, scoring 123 goals in 323 League and Cup games. He helped the Wanderers clinch promotion from Division Two in 1966-67 and then collected a League Cup winners' medal in 1974. In between times he played his part in Wolves' UEFA Cup run to the final in 1971-72 when he netted a hat-trick against Portuguese side Academica – the only Wolves player to have netted a treble in a major European competition. Four days before that game, Dougan had netted three goals when Wolves beat Nottingham Forest!

While still an active member of the Wolves' side, Dougan became Chairman of the PFA. Capped 43 times by Northern Ireland, he was forever involved with officialdom, being sent-off at least half-a-dozen times in his colourful career.

A stimulating and entertaining TV pundit, he surprised few when he later moved into management, albeit with non-League Kettering Town. In 1982 he returned to Molineux as the club's Chief Executive, a position he held briefly before circumstances made him quit the club. More recently he has been involved in raising money for various charities and has worked on several committees, quite a few relating to the game of football. In the summer of 2006 he appeared on the BBC political debate show 'Question Time', as a representative of UKIP.

GEORGE BEST

George Best was, without doubt, the greatest player to ever pull on the green shirt of Northern Ireland. His death towards the end of November 2005 brought tributes from all over the world, in recognition of his stunning, natural talent.

The son of a shipyard worker, Best was brought up in one of the red-brick streets of Belfast, and his keenness on the game led to him giving up the chance of going to a grammar school, because he wanted to go on playing soccer. Within 48 hours of starting his career with Manchester United, Best, along with another gifted Irishman Eric McMordie, became homesick and returned to Belfast. It was his father who insisted that he return to Old Trafford, and by the age of 17 he was in United's League team.

He made his League debut in a home fixture against West Bromwich Albion and even then, it was plain to see that the young Best had it all: balance, pace, bravery, vision and most of all outstanding dribbling skills. The youngster from the Cregagh Estate had the world at his feet.

He won the first of his 37 international caps for Northern Ireland before he turned 18, in a 3-2 victory over Wales at Swansea. It wasn't long before he was a household name throughout Britain and was the most important member of the great United team which won the League Championship twice in the 1960s. By 1966, 'George Best superstar' had arrived, especially after his magnificent performance in United's 5-1 thrashing of Benfica in Lisbon, where he scored twice.

After five years of playing some breathtaking football, Best secured his place in history in 1968, as United became the first English team to win the European Cup, with the Irishman scoring a superb solo goal in a 4-1 defeat of Benfica. In 1968 Best was at his peak – at only 22 years of age. That year he also deservedly won the English and European Footballer of the Year awards. He was also United's top scorer with 28 goals, and remained top scorer for the following four seasons. In 1970 he scored six of United's goals as they beat Northampton Town 8-2 at the County ground – the most goals ever scored in a single match by any United player.

His goals, many of which have been captured on television – such as the dazzling runs against Sheffield United and West Ham and the delicate lob against Spurs – have become all-time classics. Nicknamed 'the fifth Beatle', Best was one of the most famous stars in Britain during his time at Old Trafford. He was the first pop-star footballer, a personification of youth culture and the Swinging Sixties. He had the good looks and the style and the girls went mad for him, with Best getting 10,000 fan-mail letters a week! Sadly, it was this pop star image that proved his eventual downfall – for he began to live the lifestyle of a pop star and not a footballer. As he became a casualty of intense media attention, he could not concentrate on the game without being hounded everywhere by paparazzi. He opened a nightclub and a number of boutiques, which were not a success.

Once Sir Matt Busby retired in 1969, it was downhill for the Ulsterman, as United under his successors O'Farrell and Docherty fell into decline. With United being beaten by teams they used to hammer a few years ago, Best took solace in the bottle, with drinking and partying taking over his entire life. He was by now frequently missing training and failing to turn up for games. In 1972 he announced his retirement at only 26, but was persuaded back by Docherty. His comeback was not a success and he played his last game for United against Queen's Park Rangers on New Year's Day 1974. He then played for numerous other clubs, most notably with Fulham. Stockport County and Hibernian followed, then American teams Los Angeles Aztecs, Fort Lauderdale Strikers and San Jose Earthquakes. He finally ended his football career with Bournemouth in 1983 although he went on to play in many charity and friendly matches. In 2000, Best's health hit rock bottom due to liver damage, although in July 2002 he had a successful liver transplant operation and made a full recovery. Personal problems continued to hound him as he was divorced for a second time and appeared unable to beat the bottle.

In October 2005, Best entered the Cromwell hospital with flu-like symptoms, later diagnosed as a kidney infection. Susceptible to infection because of the medicines needed after his transplant, his condition deteriorated. Though he fought on for far longer than the doctors ever expected, he eventually lost his battle for life. In Belfast, Manchester and around the world, the whole of football mourned at the death of a legend. A week later, the Belfast Boy came home to his native city, where 100,000 people lined the streets and grounds of Stormont for the funeral of Northern Ireland's greatest sporting hero.

PAT JENNINGS

Northern Ireland have always had a reputation for producing outstanding goalkeepers but very few would dispute that Pat Jennings is the finest of them all. His career spanned an amazing 22 years, during which time he was not only the best keeper in Britain, but undoubtedly the world.

Having started out by playing Gaelic football for North Down Schools, he turned to football with Newry Town's junior club, Newry United. After just one season with the juniors and a little over six months with Newry Town, Jennings joined Watford for a fee of £6,000. After 48 consecutive appearances for the Hornets, who were then playing in the Third Division of the Football League, Jennings was snapped up by Spurs boss Bill Nicholson, who splashed out the princely sum of £27,000 for him in the summer of 1964.

Prior to arriving at White Hart Lane, Jennings had made his full international debut alongside a 17-year-old George Best against Wales in Swansea in April 1964. This was to be the start of an international career that yielded 119 caps over a 22 year period.

During 13 years with Spurs, 'Big Pat' won numerous trophies including an FA Cup winners' medal in 1967, a UEFA Cup winners' medal in 1972 and two League Cup winners' medals in 1971 and 1973. In August 1967, Jennings performed that coveted and extremely rare feat for a keeper when he scored a goal with a long downfield punt in the 2-2 draw against Manchester United at Old Trafford in the FA Charity Shield.

Jennings was named the Football Writers' Association Player of the Year in 1972-73, as well as the PFA Player of the Year in 1976. He went on to set a record number of appearances for the club, a figure only bettered by Steve Perryman. The popular Irishman was awarded the MBE for his services to the game in the 1976 Queen's Birthday Honours List. His achievements were also honoured by the North London club with a testimonial game against Arsenal. Although he was rarely injured, when he was in 1976-77, Spurs were relegated!

At the end of that season, the Spurs boss Keith Burkinshaw came to the conclusion that at 32, Jennings' best days were behind him and allowed him to join rivals Arsenal for a paltry fee of just £45,000. He soon came to regret that decision as Jennings proved he was far from over the hill, making nearly 400 appearances for the Gunners and playing in three successive FA Cup Finals, picking up a European Cup Winners' Cup runners-up medal and making a further 42 international appearances for his country.

Jennings' proudest moment came in the 1982 World Cup Finals in Spain, when Northern Ireland defeated the host nation 1-0. Jennings single handedly kept the Spaniards at bay with an outstanding display of goalkeeping. His performance at Wembley against England in 1985 is another that will live long in the memory, as he produced a number of reflex saves to earn his side a goalless draw – and the point they required to make it through to the 1986 World Cup Finals in Mexico.

The tournament was to be Pat Jennings' swansong. Although it was fitting that his 119th and final match would be against the wonderfully talented Brazilians on his 41st birthday, Billy Bingham's side went down 3-0. Though the conclusion of the World Cup saw Jennings officially retire, he later captained the Rest of the World XI against the Americas in a FIFA/UNICEF charity match. He briefly returned to the Northern Ireland fold as goalkeeping coach when Lawrie McMenemy took over the running of the national side in 1998. Nowadays he still resides in London where he occasionally works as a Match Day Host for his beloved Tottenham Hotspur.

DID YOU KNOW?
Northern Ireland goalkeeper Pat Jennings became the first British player to take part in 1,000 first-class games when Arsenal played West Bromwich Albion on 26 February 1983.

BRYAN HAMILTON

Having played his early football for Distillery and Linfield, where he won the first of his 50 caps for Northern Ireland in a 3-0 defeat of Turkey, Bryan Hamilton moved across the water to play for Ipswich Town in the summer of 1971. It was during his time with the Suffolk club that Hamilton enjoyed his best moments as a player, revelling under manager Bobby Robson in a very talented Ipswich side. After appearing in only a handful of games in 1971-72, Hamilton was an ever-present and joint-top scorer the following season with 11 goals. In 1973-74 he was Town's leading scorer, with 16 goals in 41 games as the Tractor Boys finished fourth in the First Division. Hamilton's only hat-trick for the Portman Road club came in March 1975 as Newcastle United were beaten 5-4. Hamilton had taken his tally of goals to 56 in 199 games when he left Ipswich to join Everton for a fee of £40,000.

Though the Belfast-born midfielder wasn't a prolific scorer at international level, he did have the happy knack of scoring vital goals for his country – three of his four goals for Northern Ireland came in 1-0 wins over Wales (twice) and Yugoslavia.

Hamilton appeared for the Merseyside outfit in the 1977 League Cup Final, although he will always be remembered by the Goodison faithful for scoring the 'goal that never was'. The FA Cup semi-final tie against rivals Liverpool stood at 2-2 when with just seconds remaining, Hamilton's thigh deflected a Duncan McKenzie flick into the Liverpool net. Everyone inside the Maine Road ground thought that the Irish international had put the Blues into the 1977 FA Cup Final. However, it was to become an infamous slice of Goodison folklore when referee Clive Thomas disallowed the effort for alleged handball. The score remained at 2-2 and Liverpool won the replay.

Though his goalscoring tally fell away on Merseyside, he more than compensated by precise passing and mature reading of the game, as well as demonstrating formidable eagerness and phenomenal lung power. Midway through the 1976-77 season, Hamilton lost his place in the Everton side and he joined Millwall for £25,000 in the close season. Hamilton later played for Swindon Town before joining Tranmere Rovers as player-manager. He saw several crises through at Prenton Park, before leaving the Wirral-based club to take over the manager's role at Wigan Athletic.

A Freight Rover Trophy win in May 1985 was the highlight of his time with the Latics, and in June 1986 he was appointed manager of Leicester City. Despite a promising start, the Foxes were relegated in 1986-87, and as he was unable to halt the slide which threatened to lead to Third Division football, he lost his job in December 1987. After returning to Springfield Park as Wigan's Chief Executive, Hamilton later re-assumed control of team matters. After leaving Wigan a second time, Hamilton became a surprise choice to succeed Billy Bingham as manager of Northern Ireland. On parting company with the national side, Hamilton has twice been called in to add his experience to the Ipswich backroom staff and had a spell in charge of rivals Norwich City.

SAMMY McILROY

As with a number of Belfast schoolboys, the only team Sammy McIlroy set his eyes upon was Manchester United and at 15 years of age, he crossed the Irish Sea to join the Old Trafford club and follow in the footsteps of George Best. McIlroy signed for the Red Devils in September 1969, with the notable distinction of being the last Busby babe. He turned professional two years later, and became one of that rare breed to make their Football League debut in a Manchester derby. He was withdrawn from a reserve game by the club's new manager Frank O'Farrell to wear the No. 10 shirt, and responded in magnificent style to score the first goal in a pulsating 3-3 draw. Sadly, the fairytale soon turned sour when the Irish midfielder was injured in a motorcycle accident, and remained out of action for more than half of the 1972-73 season.

After regaining full fitness, McIlroy gained a regular place in the United side under manager Tommy Docherty, a team that was destined for relegation to Division Two. Like his teammates, he learned from the experience and once restored to the top flight, added double-figure goalscoring to his playmaking skills.

McIlroy had won the first of his 88 international caps for Northern Ireland before his accident, and soon became as important a part of the national side as he was to Manchester United. Awarded the MBE as Northern Ireland went on to World Cup glory in Spain in 1982 and Mexico four years later, McIlroy ended his international career with a substitute appearance against England in 1987.

The Irishman was a midfielder full of energy and attacking purpose as the Red Devils clinched the Second Division Championship. After appearing in the 1976 FA Cup Final, McIlroy gained a winners' medal the following season as Liverpool were beaten 2-1. Two years later he made a third appearance only to finish up a loser again.

Despite being a permanent member of the Northern Ireland side, winning 52 caps whilst a Red, United boss Ron Atkinson didn't see him as part of Manchester United's future plans. During the early part of 1982, McIlroy left Old Trafford to join Stoke City, this after scoring 69 goals in 408 League and Cup games. After a fairly discouraging time spent in the Potteries, McIlroy returned to Manchester, this time joining City. He played just a dozen games in blue, including the 3-0 reverse of September 1985, his only derby fixture on the 'other side'.

McIlroy then tried his luck in Sweden with Örgryte before returning to the north-west with Bury. After spending the 1986-87 season with the Shakers, he followed it with another spell abroad in Austria with VFB Mödling before he ended his first-class career with a brief period at Preston North End.

On hanging up his boots, McIlroy became one of the major managers in non-League football, especially with Macclesfield whom he led to two Conference titles and victory in the 1996 FA Trophy Final at Wembley against Northwich Victoria. After helping the Silkmen win promotion to the Football League, he parted company with the club in 2000 to take over the reins of the Northern Ireland side. The popular midfielder resigned after the last of the 2004 European Championship qualifiers against Greece, later having a spell as manager of Stockport County.

MARTIN O'NEILL

Midfielder Martin O'Neill had just won an Irish Cup winners' medal with his local club Distillery in a 3-0 defeat of Derry City when in October 1971 he joined Nottingham Forest. After making his Football League debut for the injured Scottish international winger John Robertson in a 4-1 win over West Bromwich Albion at the City Ground, a month after signing for Forest, he then faded from the scene and played most of his football for the club's reserves. Indeed, O'Neill was languishing in the second team and had been placed on the transfer list when Brian Clough was appointed Forest manager. He seemed to transform O'Neill into a tenacious midfielder, and it wasn't too long before the Irishman found himself back in Forest's League side.

Throughout his playing career, Martin O'Neill was an automatic choice for Northern Ireland, winning a total of 64 caps. With Forest, he won a League Championship medal in 1977-78, two League Cup winners' medals in 1977-78 and 1978-79, and a European Cup winners' medal in 1980 as the Reds beat German side Hamburg SV – this after he'd been left out of the Forest side to face Swedish champions Malmö the previous season!

Having scored 62 goals in 371 first team games, including a most spectacular hat-trick in a 6-0 mauling of Chelsea, O'Neill was rather surprisingly allowed to leave the City Ground and sign for Norwich City. At Carrow Road he helped the Canaries avoid relegation from the top flight in 1981-82 before leaving to play for Manchester City. He had been at Maine Road for less than a year when he decided to rejoin Norwich for a second spell, eventually helping them win promotion to the First Division. In 1983 he opted for a return to the city of Nottingham but this time to County, where unfortunately injury brought a premature end to his playing career. Following spells in non-League management with both Grantham Town and Shepshed Charterhouse, O'Neill left the game due to his business commitments. However, in February 1990 he was lured back by Wycombe Wanderers and three years later he led them into the Football League.

After resisting offers to manage at the highest level, O'Neill finally returned to take over the reins at one of his former clubs, Norwich City. After just six months in the Carrow Road hot seat, he left to manage Leicester City. The Foxes lost their first nine matches under O'Neill's leadership, but seven wins in their last ten games saw them win a place in the First Division play-offs. In the play-off final at Wembley, Leicester beat Crystal Palace 2-1 to win a place in the top flight.

Also whilst at Filbert Street, he led Leicester to success in the League Cup but in 2000 Celtic came calling, and O'Neill couldn't resist the chance to manage the Parkhead club. Inspired by his motivational skills, the Bhoys swept the board in his first season with the club, and during his five years at the helm continued to win silverware. In 2003 he led Celtic to the UEFA Cup Final, beating English Premiership clubs Blackburn Rovers and Liverpool along the way. Sadly, O'Neill's side failed at the last hurdle, losing 3-2 to José Mourinho's Porto side. More domestic success followed before in May 2005 he decided to resign his post to look after his wife Geraldine, who had been suffering from ill-health for some time.

Once favourite for the England manager's job vacated by Sven-Göran Eriksson, Martin O'Neill, who was awarded the OBE for his work at Celtic, spent the summer of 2006 as a World Cup TV pundit. After months of speculation linking the genial Irishman with a number of top managerial posts, he has recently replaced David O'Leary as manager of Premiership Aston Villa.

GERRY ARMSTRONG

Gerry Armstrong wrote himself into the Northern Ireland history books by hitting the country's winning goal against host nation Spain in Valencia in the 1982 World Cup Finals. When he crossed the Irish Sea to join Tottenham Hotspur from Bangor in 1975, he was raw, hungry and ready for action. One of the game's most best-loved and genuine characters, it might be said that the big striker had barely altered when he left White Hart Lane for Watford five years later. Of course there had been certain refinements to his method, but essentially Gerry Armstrong would always remain a prodigiously strong, selfless workaholic – a colossus in the air and with heart enough for ten men!

Not that he was he was devoid of technique: his team-mates knew that they could knock the ball towards him and, having fought for it and won it, he could retain possession until reinforcements arrived. With the Argentinian influence of Ardiles and Villa placing extra emphasis on touch play, Armstrong was not in his element in North London, and he didn't help his standing with the fans by battling on uncomplainingly when he was injured, thus unable to do himself full justice.

As stars were bought, his departure became inevitable and in the summer of 1980 he joined Watford for a fee of £250,000. Even so he found it hard to establish himself at Vicarage Road, and it was therefore somewhat surprising that a place in folklore on the international scene was awaiting him.

Having made his debut for Northern Ireland in April 1977 and won 27 caps as a Spurs player, he was already an established member of the province's team when they travelled to Spain for the finals of the 1982 World Cup. The Irish were rated no-hopers by almost every international expert but by the end of the tournament, they had earned respect throughout the game for their spirit, tenacity and skill. After holding Yugoslavia to a 1-1 draw, Armstrong opened the scoring in the game against Honduras. His team failed to hold on to their lead and again they had to be satisfied with a share of the spoils. This meant that Northern Ireland almost certainly had to beat the host nation Spain to qualify for the next round.

Over 49,000 fans crammed into the Luis Casanova Stadium in Valencia expecting to see a Spanish victory, but an Armstrong strike booked Billy Bingham's boys a place in the second phase of the tournament. Confronted by three Spanish defenders, he passed the ball out wide to Billy Hamilton, who hammered in a low centre. Spanish keeper Arconada could only parry the ball into the path of Armstrong, and the Ulsterman seized his chance to fire home the winner, despite the efforts of the Spanish defenders. Not surprisingly his spirited exploits in Spain earned him the award as British Player of the Tournament.

A year later, he left the Hornets and signed for Real Mallorca, spending two years with the Spanish club. On his return to the UK, he joined West Bromwich Albion before following a brief loan spell with Chesterfield, he signed for Brighton and Hove Albion. Though the Seagulls were relegated in 1986-87, Armstrong remained registered as a player as well becoming the club's Youth Development Officer.

His League career came to a sad end in February 1989 when he left the Goldstone Ground after being convicted of assaulting a fan. He then dabbled in the management game at non-League level, before carving out a fairly high-profile career as a television pundit and renowned expert on the European game. It is this knowledge which prompted Northern Ireland boss Lawrie Sanchez to ask the popular Armstrong to become his assistant, and fulfil a position that the former striker last occupied under Bryan Hamilton.

NORMAN WHITESIDE

Norman Whiteside will always be remembered as 'the youngest at everything'. At 17 he was the youngest player to represent Manchester United since Duncan Edwards; the youngest player to score in an FA Cup Final, and also the youngest player ever to appear in a World Cup Finals tournament when in 1982 he was just 17 years and 41 days old.

Born in North Belfast, Whiteside was spotted by United's legendary Ulster scout Bob Bishop, who was also responsible for bringing George Best and Sammy McIlroy to Old Trafford. He made his debut for the Red Devils in the spring of 1982 against Brighton, before making history in the World Cup with Northern Ireland. It was during those finals in which Norman Whiteside first became famous, as he helped the Irish surprise and delight everyone by reaching the quarter-finals. The following season United won the League Cup, beating Liverpool in the final, when Whiteside scored another 'youngest ever' goal and then later that campaign scored in the FA Cup Final replay 4-0 win against Brighton.

The next few years were the high point of his career both for United and Northern Ireland. Perhaps his most famous moment came in 1985 when United played the then champions Everton in the FA Cup Final. At 0-0 in extra-time, reduced to ten men, United were up against it and an Everton winner seemed likely. Big Norman went on a run down the right wing and curled in a superb bending shot from 20 yards to beat Everton keeper Southall. It won 'goal of the season' and sealed one of the great FA Cup Final wins.

His performances for the national side were equally telling. He scored the goal in Northern Ireland's astonishing defeat of West Germany in Hamburg in 1983, and laid the groundwork for Jimmy Quinn's goal in Bucharest, which gave Northern Ireland qualification for the 1986 World Cup Finals at Romania's expense. When Whiteside went to Mexico, he became the youngest player ever to appear in two World Cup tournaments.

It was around this time that Whiteside adopted a position deeper in midfield both for United and Northern Ireland before he began to lose a bit of form and became increasingly upset by injuries. When Alex Ferguson took over as United boss, he decided that the team needed an overhaul. Whiteside's days at Old Trafford were numbered, and in the summer of 1989, with 67 goals in 272 League and Cup games to his name, he left to join Everton in the hope of putting some sparkle back into his game.

After two years at Goodison Park in which his first team appearances were to be limited due to a recurrence of his knee problems, he was forced to retire at the age of only 27. Not the sort of man for self-pity, he went back to University and qualified as a specialist in sports injuries to the feet. The genial Irishman remains an all-time Manchester United hero to this day. A highly gifted player who captured the hearts and imagination of football fans everywhere, he is fondly remembered and appreciated for what he achieved both at Old Trafford and for Northern Ireland.

DID YOU KNOW?

When Norman Whiteside scored for Manchester United in the FA Cup Final on 26 May 1983, he was just 18 years and 19 days old, the youngest player to score during an FA Cup Final.

DAVID HEALY

In the summer of 2004, the man from Killyleagh scored twice in a 3-0 defeat of Trinidad and Tobago, and in doing so became Northern Ireland's record goalscorer. It wasn't really unexpected because right from the start of his international career, when he bagged a double against Luxembourg, he had been tipped to break the long-standing record. He also netted in his next international as the Irish beat Malta 3-0. After years of desperate searching, Northern Ireland had finally found a natural goalscorer.

David Healy began his career with Manchester United, where he had a penchant for scoring goals. After a disappointing introduction to first team action against Aston Villa in the 1999-2000 League Cup, he went on loan to Port Vale. Despite scoring some important goals for the Valiants he couldn't prevent their relegation to the Second Division. On his return to Old Trafford he signed a four-year contract, and though he continued to impress whenever selected for the national side, he made little impact in United's first team squad.

In December 2000, Healy joined Preston North End for a Deepdale club record fee of £1.5 million. The young Irishman provided an immediate return on the club's investment by scoring after just four minutes of his debut against Sheffield United. Healy went on to score five times in his first seven outings for North End. Possessing an eye for goal, the nippy striker netted his first senior hat-trick in a 6-0 defeat of Stockport County.

However, during the early part of the 2002-03 season, Healy found himself on the bench and unable to displace either Richard Cresswell or Ricardo Fuller. He then had a couple of spells on loan with Norwich City, and during his time at Carrow Road seemed to rediscover some of his confidence. Having almost left Deepdale, he worked hard to win back the home crowd, scoring in four consecutive games and totalling 15 goals in that 2003-04 season.

Healy then made national headlines when he broke Northern Ireland's goalscoring drought against Norway after a remarkable run of 1,298 minutes without a goal! It certainly wasn't for the lack of trying on David Healy's part, because his desire to play for his country has proved an inspiration to all.

After taking his tally of first team goals for North End to 45 in 158 games, Healy turned down a new deal with the Lilywhites and joined Leeds United after a lengthy transfer saga. He opened his scoring account for the Yorkshire club with a double strike in United's 4-2 win at Deepdale!

At international level, he just kept on scoring goals. His shot in the 3-3 draw with Austria in October 2004 was one of the finest ever witnessed inside Windsor Park. That long range volley was a tremendous strike and had the crowd cheering wildly. But that was nothing to the roar that greeted his goal against England on 7 September 2005, a date that has gone down in Northern Ireland football folklore.

The game was goalless when Healy collected a shrewd pass from Steve Davis and ran clear on goal, before unleashing a stunning shot which flew past England keeper Paul Robinson and into the net. His strike against England will forever assume the same legendary status in the hearts of Northern Ireland fans as Gerry Armstrong's winner against World Cup hosts Spain in 1982.

James Quinn scored Northern Ireland's 500th goal in a 3-0 friendly international victory against Belgium in February 1997

TOP 50 APPEARANCES

As with League football, Pat Jennings takes the top spot. He was 19 when he won his first cap against Wales in April 1994 and played the last of his 119 internationals against Brazil in June 1986 on what was his 41st birthday!

DID YOU KNOW?
On 1 February 1930, Joe Bambrick scored six goals in Northern Ireland's 7–0 victory over Wales, the highest individual tally in a Home International.

TOP 50 GOALSCORERS

No one player has yet scored a quarter-century of goals for Northern Ireland but Leeds United striker David Healy is well on his way to achieving this feat.

In terms of strike-rate (dividing goals scored by games played) the leader of the pack is Joe Bambrick who scored 12 goals in 11 games. It should be remembered though, that substitute appearances are included as full games in these totals.
